ARREST IN DYNAMITE PLOT

FOSS SAYS JORDAN MUST DIE

PELLETIER STYLED A NANAIAS BY MAYOR

Mayor Fitzgerald in a noonday rally at the East Boston docks today placed District Attorney Pelletier in the Ananias Club.

He charged that the statements of the Pelletier forces, that they had been denied the use of the city warehouses and Boston Common, were untrue and declared that they had been given the use of more city warehouses than the Foss supporters. He said:

What Mayor Said.

"I am astonished that Mr. Pelletier should deliberately misrepresent the position of this office in regard to the use of the warehouses and piers under its control. Mr. Pelletier's statement that the Mayor has closed every warehouse in the city against him is not true.

"Mr. Pelletier's forces have had the use of the warehouses more than the Foss supporters. The records at City Hall show this to be true. Mr. Pelletier had Faneuil Hall last Saturday night, and applied for it for a noon rally today, and in both cases his request was granted.

"As far as the Common situation is concerned the facts are these: Councilman Attridge on behalf of the Pelletier forces, and Mr. Maynard of the Democratic City Committee, for the Foss forces, made application for permits for meetings on Boston Common Saturday night. Mr. Attridge went to Superintendent Sullivan and asked for a location, and Mr. Sullivan told him that under the ordinance these permits were given out by the Mayor's office. The ordinance is as follows:

Section 67, Chapter 47. No person shall in or upon any of the public grounds, make any public address . . . except in accordance with a permit from the Mayor.

Told to Pick Locatin.

"In the meantime Mr. Moore of my office called up Mr. Lavelle, assistant manager of the Pelletier campaign, and told him to select a representative to meet Mr. Maynard, representing the Foss forces and pick for a location on the Common. Mr. Lavelle knows whether this statement is true or not.

"To show how unfair are the charges which Mr. Pelletier makes, I might add that up to the present moment I have not spoken in Wards 17, 18 or 19 in the big Roxbury district because of the fact that the wardrooms in these particular sections have been given over to the Pelletier forces.

"Mr. Pelletier should recognize the fact that he is fighting for the nomination, and that the men whom he is attacking must support him to get success if he should win the nomination, and therefore he should not say anything in a campaign like this except in accordance with the facts.

The Longshoremen.

"No class of wage earners has more reason to be grateful to Governor Foss than the longshoremen because of his appointment of Charles G. Wood of New Bedford as a member of the Board of Arbitration and Conciliation. I recall well the circumstances connected with the longshoremen's strike of a few months ago, and my appeal to you to submit your grievances to the Board of Arbitration. Your representative said that you would not do this because of your previous experience with that board had convinced you that they were unfair to labor, and could not be depended upon to give a fair show. You remember that you lost the strike.

"I told you at the time that Governor Foss was the Governor, and I was the Mayor, and if, after you had presented your grievances to the Board of Arbitration, it was found that they acted unfairly you would then have a chance to test the fairness of Governor Foss and myself.

"The manner in which the Board of Arbitration acted in the Elevated strike shows that the appointment of Mr. Wood by Governor Foss made the board a fair one to both employe and employer, and I contend that this action on his part entitles him to the support of every sincere citizen of this Commonwealth.

Mrs. Bailey Killed by Poison
Mother Tells Suicide Threat

MARGUERITE BAILEY,

CLEW TO MAN LOST IN CLOUDS

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 21.—A clew given by George Turner of Bethlehem and Dr. Gile of Hanover was taken up at daybreak today by the searching parties who for almost two days have poured Mount Washington's peak and sides in an effort to find John M. Keenan of Charlestown, lost above the clouds.

Turner and Dr. Gile reported passing a youth late yesterday on the Pinkham Notch road. The man was travel-worn and looked almost demented. When they rode by him he turned and pointed at the mountain above.

This road leads from Glen to Jackson. The story of the two men is ground for hope that young Keenan made his way to the lower levels and will turn up in safety. The searchers today expected to follow the road and look for traces of the missing youth.

One hundred men and boys, led by experienced guides from surrounding towns, have scoured the mountain top without finding any trace of Keenan. The young fellow was working for the Boston & Maine Railroad, with eleven others, making a preliminary survey for an electric road to the summit, contemplated by the Boston & Maine. When the fog suddenly shut down, Keenan was holding a leveling rod, several rods away from the rest of the party.

They called to him to wait where he was, but when they had made their way to the spot, he had disappeared.

The searchers have kept a special lookout for this levelling rod which the young man had. The finding of it might indicate the direction in which he had wandered. But it is still missing, and for any trace found by the search parties, Keenan might have been snatched from the mountain top by some giant bird, so completely has he vanished.

Unless Keenan is found today, hope for his safety will be abandoned by all but the most optimistic. He had no compass, no supply of food or drink, no extra clothing, and no experience in mountaineering. He has been exposed to two days of alternate fog, rain and hail, with continuous low temperature, and a frost fell on much of the mountain last night. An experienced man, even without methods, might have made himself fairly comfortable in the evergreen growth below the timber line and waited for rescue, but Keenan was not an experienced man.

H. S. Jewell, chief engineer of the surveying party, and H. C. Spaulding, superintendent of the railway, directed the search for Keenan. Most of the searchers remained on the mountain last night, either at the Tip Top House, in the Mt. Monroe shelter, or camped in the open. They resumed the search at daybreak.

Autopsy Performed on Body of Young Wife Who Left Husband Recently.

Mrs. Marguerite Bailey, the young woman whose mysterious death at No. 3 Wellington street, South End, is being investigated by the police, had always threatened to kill herself if any deep trouble came upon her, according to a statement made by her mother, Mrs. Ellen Crosby of Providence, today. Mrs. Bailey and her husband separated three weeks ago. They lived in Weymouth.

Medical Examiner Magrath today visited the room where Mrs. Bailey died and ordered the body removed to the North Grove street morgue for an autopsy, and declared after it was over that the woman died from poison.

He found a few grains of white powder on the floor, which he brushed into a paper and took with him. He performed the autopsy this noon.

Walter J. Perkins, who had spent the day with Mrs. Bailey, told the police that he went out at 5:30 last night to get her some toothache drops and found her in great pain when he returned. He summoned Dr. Hayes of No. 346 Columbus avenue, but Mrs. Bailey died before the doctor arrived.

The police say that Perkins told them he had known Mrs. Bailey for over a year.

Clew to Identification.

It was partly through the mention of Perkins' name that Mrs. Ellen Crosby of Providence was convinced that the dead girl was her daughter.

"Walter J. Perkins is a friend of her's," said Mrs. Crosby.

Lending additional pathos to the death of Mrs. Bailey is the fact that she leaves a two-year-old boy, whom she put in charge of her mother a fortnight ago.

Mrs. Crosby lives at No. 68 Congdon street, Providence. She collapsed when told of Mrs. Bailey's death. She said:

"I am afraid it is Marguerite, though I did not know her address in Boston. She was going to let me know where she lived when she was settled.

"But I know the name of Walter J. Perkins, the man who is said to have been with her yesterday. He was a friend of her's and had known her over a year.

"Marguerite was twenty years old. She was a girl of gentle, lovable disposition, but she could not stand trouble. Ever since she was ten years old she has threatened to make away with herself in the event of any great trouble.

Said She Took Poison.

She was married three years ago. She and her husband first lived in Andover, then moved to Weymouth. Three weeks ago they broke up. She went to Boston, but I didn't know where. She had brought her little boy here. She wrote me last Tuesday and said she would let me know where she would be.

Mrs. Crosby came to Boston today.

Perkins, who was with Mrs. Bailey yesterday, was questioned by the police, but was released. The police say that Perkins told them he found Mrs. Bailey gasping convulsively, and that she told him she had taken corrosive sublimate.

Dr. Hayes, the Columbus avenue physician whom Hayes summoned, said that the woman did not die from that poison, because her tongue was not swollen.

Mrs. Bailey had been at No. 3 Wellington street since last week Friday, so she was lodging there when she wrote to her mother last Tuesday.

Yesterday, according to Perkins's story, he and Mrs. Bailey went to luncheon, then a matinee, and at supper at a South End hotel, after which they returned to her lodgings. He found her dying, he said, when he came back with the toothache medicine.

GERMAN ARMY FLIERS DASHED TO DEATH

BERLIN, Sept. 21.—The long list of victims of military aviation was swelled today by the death of two German army fliers who were dashed to destruction near Freiberg while making a flight in a monoplane. Both victims were lieutenants of the Imperial Flying Corps. The motor of the monoplane went wrong while the men were about 300 feet in the air and the machine plunged to earth.

LAWYERS SEE FOSS BUT GET NO HOPE

Governor Foss had two conferences today Pelletier to the case of Convict S. Jordan, condemned to die in the coming week for the murder of his wife. Sheriff Fa Irbairn of Middlesex county, who has had charge of Jordan during the five years that he was confined in the East Cambridge jail, was summoned by the Governor this morning to give Mr. Foss his own opinion as to the mental condition of Jordan, formed during the time that the slayer was in Sheriff Fairbairn's charge.

After Sheriff Fairbairn had left the Governor's office, Attorneys Bartlett and Pratt, representing Jordan, had a long conference with the Chief Executive. At its close none of the parties would say anything as to the outcome of the conference, but from the manner of the two attorneys it is believed the Governor informed them he had finally decided to do nothing in the matter, and that he will not stay the execution, which is planned for Tuesday morning.

Governor Foss sent out word to the newspaper men that he "guessed there was nothing to be said."

CUMMINGS, IN JAIL, TO FACE NEW CHARGE OF $4,246 LARCENY

Charles S. Cummings, the Boston note broker, who was sent to the Charlestown State prison for from five to eight years in connection with the Framingham defalcation two years ago, and who is now in prison, will be brought before Judge Chase in the Superior Criminal Court of East Cambridge next Tuesday, charged with the larceny of a note valued at $4,240.45 in connection with the Framingham transactions.

The note was the property of the Framingham Savings Bank. It is expected that John B. Lombard, who was the town treasurer of Framingham, and who was sent to prison for from ten to fifteen years may be called as a witness.

The additional action is brought against Cummings through District Attorney Higgins. Just why this suit should be brought at this time has not been disclosed, but possibly the District Attorney and others back of the prosecution do not believe Cummings' sentence was adequate punishment.

TWO STATE FARM ATTENDANTS HELD FOR CAUSING DEATH

BROCKTON, Sept. 21.—In the Police Court today Fred J. Sears and John Leather, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of John Navera, an inmate of the insane department at the State Farm, were held in $5,000 each for the Grand Jury. Both waived examination. Sears and Leather were attendants at the State Farm. Navera was a Boston man.

REDMOND ARRIVES FOR BIG SESSION

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—W. H. K. Redmond, M. P., arrived here today on his way from his Irish home to Philadelphia, where he is to attend the session of the United Irish League of America, September 23. Mr. Redmond, who is one of the noted workers for home rule, said that the Irish would get home rule at no very distant day.

15 TURKS KILLED BY BOMB THROWER

ADRIANOPLE, Turkey, Sept. 21.—Fifteen persons were killed today during an anti-Turkish demonstration here when someone threw a bomb into a crowd of Turks who were just emerging from a morgue. Today's outrage is one of a series of similar demonstrations against the Turks in the Balkan States in the past year.

Wilson's Daughters See Hub
'Father Will Win'---Miss Jessie

MISS JESSIE WILSON, GOVERNOR'S DAUGHTER

"Father will win," said Miss Jessie Wilson, the pretty blonde daughter of Woodrow Wilson, who was in Boston, after a long automobile ride with her sister, Miss Eleanor and John C. Wilson, cousin of the candidate.

"But you know that I did not come on here to Boston to talk politics," continued Miss Wilson at the Copley-Plaza. "So please don't ask me anything about politics. I've come all the way from my country home to hear something different."

"But don't you think your father will win in this election?"

Miss Wilson did not feel inclined to give an answer to this question at once, apparently thinking deeply how it might sound, but after a few moments' hesitation, with radiant light from her blue eyes, she said demurely: "Yes, father will win. We all feel he will win. We know him and he will make good.

Delighted with Boston.

"But please don't bother me say more about politics. You must not talk in public about your father. It is not good taste, so let me out. Let us talk about something else.

"I will say," continued Miss Wilson, "that Boston is a perfectly lovely city. I've been here once before, but this time I have seen more to admire.

"There is always something in Boston that you do not see in other cities. I'm perfectly delighted with it and I'm enjoying every moment of my short stay. We did hope that we could come here and not be known, but you newspaper men seem to know things before we get trace of them ourselves."

Miss Jessie in taking the elevator to the roof of the hotel to have a group picture taken was somewhat surprised at the protest of her Uncle John, who thought that he was too old a man to have his picture taken.

"Oh! be a sport," laughed Miss Jessie. "Come, we'll have all that is going," and so Uncle John submitted.

"What are you most interested in here, Miss Jessie?" she was asked.

"Your social settlement work in Boston appeals to me. In that work I am engaged myself, and one hears often of what is being done in Boston. Boston is talked about in the advance grade. Every woman should try to be useful in her special sphere.

"My father is a practical man. He believes that his daughters should get interested in something useful and not ornamental. So I have chosen social settlement work and its problems, and I find them very attractive. I should like to know more about your social work here in Boston."

Uncle John Confident.

"Do you believe in woman's suffrage?"

"Now, you must not ask any more questions," said she with a quiet resentment at the tone of the question.

Then "Uncle John" came along. He is in the oil business in Franklin, Pennsylvania, and makes annual trips to New England for a vacation.

He is very confident that his cousin Woodrow will be elected.

"Why, we've known Woodrow for many years. We know what kind of man he is and we believe he is in this race to win. Everyone who knows him will vote for him. He'll make a mighty good President. Wait and see," he exclaimed with a twinkle in his eye.

ARMY BALLOON DROPS; NINE SEVERELY HURT

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 21.—Russian military dirigible balloon Joffre was wrecked at Gatschina today, and all members of her crew of nine men injured. None will die. The dirigible had left St. Petersburg at noon, and had covered about thirty miles, when a leak in the bag allowed the gas to escape. The machine was more than 900 feet in the air, and was hurriedly brought towards earth. It plunged the last 100 feet into a grove of trees, which broke the fall.

IMPLICATE W. H. RICE OF MILTON IN 'PLANT'

William H. Rice, a wealthy quarryman of No. 35 Reedsdale street, East Milton, was arrested today in connection with the Lawrence strike dynamite case, on a secret indictment warrant charging him with unlawfully transmitting the explosive through the streets.

Rice is the man who admitted that he furnished dynamite to Ernest W. Pitman, who committed suicide rather than testify before the Grand Jury about the planting of dynamite.

Rice declared when he made his statement about furnishing Pitman with the dynamite that he had been informed that Pitman wanted to use the explosive legitimately. It was understood that Rice claimed that he had nothing to do with transmitting the dynamite through the streets.

Rice was arrested at his home. The arrest was made by Inspector Thomas Lynch of Boston and Chief Morris Pierce of the Milton force. He was brought to police headquarters. He gave his age as forty-six. Bail was fixed in the sum of $2,000. Arrangements were made to produce bondsmen.

Upon receiving the report of the Grand Jury Judge Hardy excused the jurors until September 30. This is taken to indicate that the dynamite probe is not yet ended. Under ordinary circumstances the Grand Jury would be excused until the regular October session.

The three already indicted in this case are William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company; Frederick E. Atteaux, a wealthy die manufacturer and country roister of Boston, and Donald J. Collins, a Cambridge dog fancier. Wood, Atteaux and Collins are on bail for $5,000 for conspiracy, and Collins is also bonded for another $1,000 for transporting dynamite, according to the indictment.

The planting of the dynamite took place early in the Lawrence strike last Spring. John J. Breen, the Lawrence undertaker, has already been fined $500 by a Middlesex County Court for his part in the conspiracy and Ernest W. Pitman of Andover committed suicide upon the day he was summoned before the Grand Jury to tell what he knew about the case.

The nation is watching the progress of the case.

MRS. E. H. HARRIMAN TO BE SUBPOENAED

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Colonel Daniel M. Ransdell, sergeant-at-arms of the United States Senate, arrived here today with subpoenas for Mrs. E. H. Harriman and Miss Lizzie P. Bliss, to appear before the committee that is investigating campaign contributions. Mrs. Harriman, it is understood, will be asked to produce the private letter files of her husband in an effort to clear the allegation made by the late E. H. Harriman that in the campaign of 1904 he raised more than $200,000 at Colonel Roosevelt's request. Miss Bliss, daughter of the late Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the Republican National Committee in 1904, will be asked to produce any papers left by her father which may have a bearing upon the case.

50,000 LIVES LOST IN TYPHOON IN CHINA

LYONS, France, Sept. 21.—Fifty thousand lives were lost in the typhoon which recently swept the province of Chekiang, in China, according to a dispatch received here today from el. Reynaud, apostolic vicar for Eastern Chekiang. M. Reynaud's dispatch is dated Ningpo, September 10, and states that 100,000 families are scattered and starving to death. The vicar said he had heard nothing from his vicarage since the storm, because the entire town was ripped out and telegraphic and mail facilities destroyed.

DYNAMITE SAFE IN MALDEN OFFICE

Burglars blew open the safe of J. W. Logan & Co., coal dealers of No. 284 Eastern avenue, Malden, and secured $60 in cash, two gold watches and a lady's watch chain. Mr. Logan discovered the break when he went to the office. The outer door of the safe had been blown open. The inner door was sawed open. The tools with which the inner door was opened had been stolen from Cash's Irving court garage, which had been broken open.

WRITING EXPERTS TO FOLLOW DAKOTA DAN

Handwriting experts are expected to follow Dakota Dan on the stand in the Russell will fight at East Cambridge. It is also likely that authorities on finger prints will be called to give expert testimony regarding the thumbprint found on a sample check which was signed by the real Daniel Blake Russell when a student at a Boston business school.

The handwriting experts will take several weeks in giving their evidence, it is believed. They will be retained by both sides in the will contest. During the first trial their testimony occupied more than a month of the court's time.

For Dakota Dan Professor Augustus H. Gill of Tech, a well known handwriting expert, has been retained. Today photographs of exhibits in the case were submitted to him. Lawyers for the estate have engaged experts to combat the testimony offered by Dakota Dan's experts.

A number of new witnesses, one a Melrose woman, will take the stand during the next few days of the Russell will hearing, to declare that "Dakota Dan" is the real Daniel Blake Russell. This was the statement of Attorney William R. Scharton, Dakota Dan's attorney.

Scharton's statement followed the testimony of George L. Harrington, a traveling salesman for a rubber company, who was brought up in Melrose and knew Daniel Blake Russell. Harrington stated positively that "Dakota Dan" is the real Dan Russell.

Attorney Scharton stated that Harrington had volunteered his testimony and that several others had come forward in the same manner.

Harrington's testimony came just before court adjourned till Monday, when Dakota Dan will resume the stand. The salesman's story was the feature of the day's hearing.

Harrington declared that he had studied Dakota Dan on the witness stand for a week and that he recalled vividly that the same person that he knew as a boy in Melrose with whom he and his brother used to talk a good deal.

Harrington also declared that Dakota Dan and Edward Fiento fired shots at the weather vane over the Harrington stable. Harrington's story was as follows:

Harrington's Testimony.

"I am forty-two years old and was born in Melrose. I lived there until I was six years old. I have a brother Fred, three years older, who lives in Boston. I knew the late Senator Daniel Blake Russell. I knew by sight both of his sons, William C. Russell and Daniel Blake Russell. The latter, who was on the witness stand and who has been referred to as Dakota Dan, I knew in Melrose as Dan Russell.

"The last time I saw him I was fifteen or sixteen years old. I will never forget his voice and manner of speech. He talks exactly the same now as he did when he was a boy. I talked with him often in Melrose. Dan Russell's voice was low and rather deep. I would call it a thick voice. He did not exactly stutter, but he hesitated in his words. I use to talk to him just to make him talk. I teased him by throwing snowballs and sticks at him. I did this to have fun with him and because he talked differently than others in Melrose. The peculiarity was known to all the boys."

Harrington explained that he came to court as a volunteer witness and not in response to a summons.

"I would not have done right, in my opinion, if I had not come here," he said.

Mr. Nason cross-examined the witness.

"Did you stealthily observe the claimant?"

"Not stealthily," retorted the witness. Harrington said he had watched the witness in court.

"Why did you watch him?"

"To see what he would say. It was largely out of curiosity."

"You said you identified him by his voice and manner of speech?"

"Yes."

"Can you describe his manner of speech more clearly?"

"His voice was low, slow and thick."

"Were you near the claimant in court?"

"Yes."

"How long were you near him?"

"A very short time."

"When did you first see him since his return in 1909?"

"Last Monday."

Three pictures of Daniel Blake Russell, two as a baby, and one a child about five years of age, were brought out and the witness was asked to say if he could not show some resemblance between them and the youth he knew as seventeen or eighteen, but he could not.

It was just three years ago that the famous will fight began, before Judge Lawton in the Probate Court at East Cambridge, and the anniversary passed without any mention of it in fact in the court room, or any unusual features, with the possible exception that William C. Russell paid marked attention to the testimony of Harrington. He was the first witness, except Executor Alsop, whom the "silent man" has followed closely.

COLT'S REVOLVERS ONLY $7.50 REGULAR PRICE $10.00

UNCLE SAM SAYS— "A 45-calibre revolver is the greatest man stopper on earth." The U. S. Government has experimented with smaller calibres; but soon went back to the 45 bore, the reason being that when a revolver is used in actual warfare it must be a MAN STOPPER. MUCH DEPENDS ON THE BULLET'S STRIKING POWER. If you use the WEAK, LIGHT BULLET, before he can cross the room to you, perhaps before he can raise hand can strike a man-killing blow, or, often before his finger can press a trigger, a 45 bore bullet whizzes and a revolver battle ensues. Other soldiers might, but only they with cheers!

Our 45 Calibre Colt's New Army Double Action Revolver is the finest weapon of its kind ever manufactured from U. S. ARMY ACCEPTOR RAIL. They were purchased at cost out of the Government order. Price only $7.50 each.

We also have some 45 cal. 6-in. Double Action (self-ejecting) for those who prefer them at the same price. Further particulars will be given you if you call at our store. Remember, we will not sell at all UNLESS A BARGAIN AS GOLD DOLLARS AT 50c. Such the thing for bankers and troopers. Stolen Girl Seeks Parents Asks the American to Help

MISS ANNIE FEATHERSON.

Sister of kidnaper on her deathbed, declares Miss Featherson was stolen from the home of her parents in Boston years ago.

A pathetic story of her being kidnaped as a child from her home in Boston and of her long search to discover the identity of her parents is told in a letter to the AMERICAN from Annie Featherson, of No. 141 Ontario street, Vinaville, Quebec. Miss Featherson asks the AMERICAN to help her locate her family.

The facts Miss Featherson writes make the story of her life strange, almost like fiction. It is a remarkable letter, and her touching appeal for assistance in her hunt for her lost relations is sure to bring some response from them.

Miss Featherson says she was stolen from the home of her parents in Boston and taken to Canada. The sister of her kidnaper, on her deathbed, gave her the first news that somewhere in New England were living relatives she had not dreamed of.

Miss Featherson declares she did not learn her family name until recently. She was named Annie by her kidnaper. Her mother, she says, was Mrs. Featherson of Codman place, Boston. He was a cab driver. She gives the name of one of her relatives as Thomas B. Featherson. Her letter follows:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Your newspaper is appreciated by thousands of people for all the good it has done, such as the reuniting of those long lost to their loved ones. So I come to you for help, feeling confident that you will find the ones for whom I have sighed and yearned so deeply.

I am giving you a few notes so that you can rearrange them and publish them in your paper.

About thirty-one years ago, when I was about two or three years old, I was stolen by a man named William Mars. He might have been paid to do it. I remember slightly the house where I lived first, but I do not recall where it was located. Mars' sister declared in her last moments of life that I was stolen and that my parents lived around Boston.

They always gave me the name of Annie, but my family's name is Featherson, which I learned only recently.

I wrote to Boston for the papers concerning my birth and the facts I learned corresponded exactly with what Mars' sister had told me on her deathbed. I hope you will be able to locate for me my own dear mother or some one related to me.

I have photographs which will convince my relatives who I am. I hope some of your readers can give news of Thomas B. Featherson or his family. My father was a cab driver. His wife's name was Phoebe Featherton of Codman place, Boston. I will see that a reward is given the one who will help me out in the recovery of my parents.

The AMERICAN would be glad to learn any facts regarding the relatives of Miss Featherson and will see that she is informed of the discovery of any of her relatives in or around Boston.

POLITICAL NEWS

The campaign of Governor Foss will be boomed tonight by a mass meeting in Tremont Temple, with overflow meetings in Faneuil Hall and on the Common. There will also be Foss meetings in the Winslow Street Church and at the Russell Club, in Hyde Park. The Governor, Mayor Fitzgerald, David I. Walsh, John W. Cummings of Fall River, Chairman Riley of the Democratic Committee, ex-Senator Thomas H. Dowd, John H. Murphy and Dr. John W. Coughlin will speak. There was a noon rally on the Common also.

City Councilor Walter L. Collins will preside at the noonday rally today for District Attorney Pelletier in Faneuil Hall. Besides Mr. Pelletier the other speakers advertised are James H. Vahey, Congressman Curley, Arthur M. Huddell, Thomas H. Cassidy and Peter W. Collins. Tonight Mr. Pelletier will make a tour of the city.

Chairman Riley of the Democratic State Committee has issued a statement in which he predicted that 125,000 Democrats will take part in the primaries Tuesday and that only between 10 and 20 per cent. of them will vote for Pelletier.

A Democratic meeting will be held tonight in Plumber's Block, Cleary square, Hyde Park, at which Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressman Peters and Murray, Judge Thomas F. Riley and several other speakers will be present.

James H. Vahey, formerly Democratic candidate for Governor and now a Pelletier supporter, and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Foss campaigner, indulged in a spirited discussion last night, during which the Mayor was challenged by Mr. Vahey to a joint debate. The conflict of words occurred on the sidewalk in front of Young's Hotel.

Miss Margaret Foley last night had her automobile filled with members of the woman's suffrage party and started out after James P. Maguire, who was holding a rally somewhere in Ward 22. Miss Foley found Mr. Maguire and she got his party away from him when a policeman ordered her to move on. The crowd followed to the next corner, where she spoke.

Congressman James M. Curley opened his campaign for the nomination last night with rallies at Boston and Mt. Vernon streets and in Dorchester, Mattapan and Neponset.

Colonel Everett C. Benton spoke in Lowell Hall, Chelsea, and Whittier Hall, Everett. Tonight he speaks in Hyde Park, where ex-Mayor Walter C. Wardwell of Cambridge and J. Mitchel Galvin will also appear. Monday night Colonel Benton will speak in Faneuil Hall.

Joseph Walter, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, spoke in Faneuil Hall on "The Commonwealth as a Business Concern." George S. Smith, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided.

"The tide has turned," said a Foss man at a down-town hotel, discussing the Democratic primary contest for the gubernatorial nomination. "Foss is going to sweep the State. The Pelletier men, who appeared confident of victory up to a week ago, are beginning to lose confidence. This is noticeable in the lack of Pelletier money in the betting market. Up to a week ago it was pretty easy to find a Pelletier enthusiast willing to bet even money on his candidate's chances. Today Pelletier money is almost as scarce as hen's teeth. Those that are betting on Pelletier are demand odds."

John F. McDonald, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and one of the big guns in the Pelletier campaign, is still confident that the Suffolk County prosecutor will win out. "Pelletier will carry Boston," he said, "by from 12,000 to 15,000 votes over Governor Foss. Even if he only beats Foss by half this amount in Boston, Pelletier will win."

FEAR U. S. FORCE ANNIHILATED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Unless, within the next twenty-four hours, definite news reaches Washington concerning the outcome of the battle between the American marines and the rebel forces near Granada, the State Department will request that the Panama Canal Zone, now at Panama, be sent immediately to Nicaragua to succor the American troops. Government officials are now thoroughly alarmed for the safety of the 900 marines who left Managua to open a way to Granada and who, it is feared, met with a vastly superior force of rebels and may have been annihilated.

Less than a week ago it was confidently announced that the rebel forces in Nicaragua were amply able to take care of any contingency that might arise in the Latin American republic and that the revolt was practically at an end.

Today the State Department officials fear that the United States is facing the worst foreign problem it has met since the Spanish-American war, for the Nicaraguan rebels, unlike the majority of the Latin-American revolutionary forces, are well armed, disciplined and equipped with the latest weapons of warfare. In order to capture Granada the American force will have to storm and take fort San Francisco which is manned by General Mena's trained gunners and which effectually guards all approaches to the town.

TRAGIC LIFE STORY OF CHESTER S. JORDAN

The defence of Chester S. Jordan, accused of the murder in the first degree of his wife, Honora, a former burlesque actress, failed to convince the jury that insanity, epileptic, emotional or otherwise, had been shown. A verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree was brought in after the jury had deliberated nineteen hours. Four days later, on May 8, 1909, one of the jurors, Willis A. White, a Maynard farmer, became violent and was committed to Bloomingdale Hospital for the Insane at Worcester. The defence seized this opportunity.

CHAPTER IV.

The Forlorn Struggle.

"One of the Jordan jurors has gone insane!"

This startling news was discussed in all its bearings.

The public read with interest how Willis A. White of Maynard, the very first juror chosen, had gone raving crazy, how he had shrieked and gesticulated in Cornwall Square where he was brought out of court, how he had been put away in an insane hospital. The public also read other queer stories about White, particularly of his surprising insanity tests to himself at the trial.

It seems that White had listened to testimony for an alienist until he went crazy—not on account of that necessarily, but right after it.

Other jurors recalled seeing him tap his knee for the well known "reflex" test, after an alienist had described it.

Exceptions by Defence.

The defence already had on hand thirty-three exceptions, noted in the progress of the Jordan trial. Thirteen related to testimony and rulings. The others dealt with Judge Bell's charge to the jury.

Well the lawyers for the defence threw into the insanity verdict even against them, the fight to save Jordan would be ordered to the last legal ditch.

Jordan's sister, Mrs. Jessie Livermore, was too loyal and too wealthy to let the defence rest until every expedient was exhausted.

So the Jordan lawyers took exceptions to this and to that and were ready at the moment the jury said "guilty," to unlimber their reserve battery of objections.

Then out of a clear sky came this unexpected reinforcement to the defence of a juror going insane four days after he had participated in a verdict where the defence was insanity.

Their argument was obvious—Juror White, an insane man, was incompetent to measure the sanity or insanity of Jordan, hence the whole trial is null and void.

Law in No Hurry.

The law took Jordan and put him back in East Cambridge jail to await sentence. The law was in no particular hurry. It had won its cash at the hands of a jury and it knew only too well that the jury's verdict in Massachusetts has said "Guilty."

True, one juror had gone insane four days later—the same law had deemed that important. But it looked up its precedents and found that such things had happened before without any one being arrested.

In Cambridge jail Jordan began to put on fat slowly but surely. He was the commonly described "model prisoner" from the first.

Then, slowly but surely, Jordan and his aged parents and other relatives, including the ever-resourceful Jessie Livermore, were buoying themselves up with hope—the Jordan counsel were ever active.

There ensued a long sequence of attacks against the verdict, with the law ever repelling these attacks so the verdict would stand.

General Bartlett and Harvey N. Pratt, Jordan's lawyers, filed their thirty-three exceptions on June 2, following the trial. They sought a new trial.

Defence's Fight Fails.

Exceptions and motions were overruled.

Exceptions to the overruling were taken. A rescript was handed down.

Then the law said: "It is time to proceed with this man." District Attorney Pelletier of Middlesex, who had prosecuted Jordan, moved for sentence.

On January 7, 1911, twenty months after his conviction, Jordan was brought into court at East Cambridge and was sentenced to be executed within the week beginning March 12, 1911.

With unabated vigor Jordan's counsel brought forward its auxiliary defence—the insanity of Juror White. They went to the trial court on a motion for a re-hearing. The court decided that the defence had not shown, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Juror White was actually insane at the time of the verdict.

Counsel for the defence raised the point that it did not have to prove Juror White insanity beyond reasonable doubt. They appealed to the Supreme Judicial Court of the State, maintaining that Jordan had been denied "due process of law," as lawyers say, meaning that he had not been properly and legally tried.

Then to Highest Court.

The Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts said "No" and refused to order a new trial. Meanwhile the fatal month of March was approaching and it behooved Jordan's counsel to seek another court. So an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, the highest tribunal in the land.

It costs much to go to the United States Supreme Court. But there was no ironic shortage of funds, not with Jessie L. Livermore making his hundreds of thousands in cotton.

The appeal to the highest court resulted in setting aside the execution date—two small circumstances in itself. Jordan's attorney sought what they term a writ of error. Chief Justice Aiken of the Massachusetts court issued the writ on January 31, 1911, which acted, at the same time, as a stay of execution.

So March, 1911, came and went and Jordan stayed on at East Cambridge jail. He lived well. His relatives sent in all sorts of dainties, subject, of course, to official inspection.

Worry seemed the least of Jordan's troubles. He and "Big Bill" Kelliher, the gambler, were the prize prisoners, so far as health and comfortable appearance went.

Supreme Court Decides.

Weeks went by, then months. The New Year of 1912 came and Jordan was still waiting at East Cambridge for the decision of the court of last resort.

On February 14, 1912, the law, in the person of District Attorney Higgins, moved again. He filed a brief with the United States Supreme Court, asking for an early hearing on the Jordan appeal.

A few weeks later the attorneys for the prisoner and for the State were called to Washington. There they made their arguments, the one for a new trial, the other for the verdict as it stood. They then came back to Boston and waited.

The Law's Final Answer.

On May 27 last the telegraph wires flashed from Washington the decision of the United States Supreme Court. The gist of the decision was in two words:

"APPEAL DENIED."

The opinion of the learned justices at Washington was, in substance:

"That there was a full hearing upon the issue made by the suggestion of the insanity of the juror is not questioned. Due process implies a tribunal both impartial and mentally competent to afford a hearing. But to say that due process is denied when a competent State court refuses to set aside a verdict because the sanity of one of its members was established by only a preponderance of the evidence would be to enforce an action unknown to the precedents of the past and an interference with the discretion in the powers of the State not justified by the demands of justice not recognized by the definition of due process."

This was the law's final answer to the condemned. The law had protected its own verdict. Jordan must die.

A few days later the law called again for its quarry. Jordan was taken into East Cambridge court and for a second time was sentenced to the electric chair. The date of execution this time was set within the week of September 22, 1912, which is tomorrow.

DRINK HABIT Conquered in 3 Days.

Ten years have passed since I was freed from the terrible curse of drink and the craving for stimulants. Since then I have been the means of aiding thousands of men and women to give up alcohol. Some have willingly taken Remedy, others have been served without knowing it, but in every case the desire for liquor is gone in three days; they will not touch alcohol again. The improvement in the health of an habitual drunkard is marvelous; what he gives up alcohol by aid of my Remedy he gains in health, and in more cases than one I have known a steady improvement to manifest itself from day to day. They are surprised and delighted at the great change for the better in their health, and glad to be rid of the curse.

The testimonials of testimonials, which come to me by every mail, are the most profitable evidence of the lasting merit of my Remedy.

It costs nothing to receive my book. Each of you have experienced of how you are by yourself or another. There is no other method that can compare with mine as a guarantee.

Write me today for my free book, sealed, which will be sent you in plain, sealed wrapper, postpaid, on receipt of application. I appeal especially to those who have wasted money on treatments which have had no satisfactory effect. Correspondence is strictly confidential.

CALL PELLETIER NOON RALLY OFF

District Attorney Pelletier's noon rally in Faneuil Hall today was called off because Mr. Pelletier was unable to be present.

Between campaigning and Grand Jury duty he was up late last night and had to be at the Court House early today to excuse the Grand Jury. So he sent word to Faneuil Hall this noon that he would not attempt to crowd in a rally this noon.

Two Pelletier rallies were held this noon at other points. Congressman James M. Curley spoke at one, at the Walter Baker Chocolate Works in Milton. The other at the doors of the Boston Woven Hose Company, Cambridgeport, was to have been addressed by ex-Senator James H. Vahey. On account of Mr. Vahey's illness Cambridge supporters of Mr. Pelletier supplied his place.

Mr. Pelletier will speak tonight from the Court House steps. Monday night he makes a whirlwind tour of the city wards.

Fritzi Scheff's Life Unhappy Result: Quits Author John Fox

Fritzi Scheff, the Comic Opera Prima Donna, and her Husband, John Fox, Jr., from Whom She Has Separated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—"Fritzi Scheff still loves John Fox, Jr.," said friends of both the actress and the author in New York today, discussing the report she had parted from her literary husband. "But," they continued, "oil and water cannot mix. Neither can the Cumberland mountains and the Rialto, the student and the prima donna.

"Mr. Fox is a quiet man, happy in his home and loving only the peace and quiet of the Virginia hills," said one friend. "He is essentially a student, whereas the theatre, to his wife, is her life and her inspiration.

"There is no bitterness between them—not a bit. They are perfectly loyal to one another. Mr. Fox will not attempt to oppose anything his wife wishes to do. If she flies an action he will not oppose it. They are two sensible people and their separation, to them, is the most practical way of avoiding the differences caused by their temperaments."

Mr. Fox's friends and relatives in this city were not particularly communicative.

"I have heard nothing of any suit and I have no information on the subject to make public," said the novelist's brother, Rector K. Fox, who is a broker at No. 23 Broad street.

"Neither my husband nor myself know anything about a contemplated suit," added Mrs. Rector K. Fox, over the telephone from her home in Mount Kisco. "We do not even know where John Fox is at present."

LODGE SPEECH IGNORES T. R.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21.—The Republican Presidential campaign was opened in Ohio today by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts.

In his prepared speech he made no mention of his personal friend of many years, Theodore Roosevelt, devoting his attention entirely to an attack upon the legislative work of the last Democratic Congress and to an appeal for the re-election of President Taft.

He declared that the Democrats legislative policy was planned to hamper the commercial aims of the American State Department and to hinder the effectiveness of the army and navy.

He upheld the Republican tariff plank and contrasted with an appeal to the voters to support President Taft and "To stand by the party which stands for the Constitution and for a progress which is a real progress and which is not revolution."

"The Republican party came into being for the purpose of ridding the land of human slavery. To the Republican party is due the financial credit of the country, for it is the Republican party which fought for the payment of the debts and which sustained the gold standard.

"In recent years, with the new questions that have arisen, to what party do we owe the Sherman Act, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the law stopping rebates, the Pure Food law, and every other measure which has marked an advance in government and progress, in the protection of the rights of the people? They are alike due to the Republican party —to Republican Presidents and Republican Congresses.

"The Republican party has always been the party of sane and rational progress under the Constitution. It is so today. A party can profit by its victories and endure defeats if it is true to its principles; but when principles are abandoned, victories are worthless and defeats are ruinous. Parties come and go, but principles survive.

"If we are true to our principles the party will live on and win many victories, and be of service to the people of the United States in the future as in the past.

"For these reasons I urge you to stand for the party which stands for the Constitution and for a progress which is a real progress and which is not revolution.

"The Republican party stands for liberty as against license; for order as against confusion; for loyalty to the great principles of justice and freedom which have been handed down to us from the days of Washington; in one word it stands for the Constitution which Marshall interpreted and which Lincoln saved."

WALDO GRILLED IN POLICE PROBE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Former Mayor George B. McClellan, now a Princeton professor, has notified the aldermanic committee which is investigating police graft that he will testify at any time that he is called, as to what he knows of the conduct of the department.

The graft investigation is the direct sequel to the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler who was shot down in front of the Hotel Metropole, for which killing Lieutenant Charles A. Becker, "Lefty Louie," "Gib the Blood," "Whitey" Lewis and "Dago Frank" are now in the Tombs awaiting trial.

On the witness stand for the third time Police Commissioner Waldo repeatedly disavowed responsibility for the fact that he had appointed to his force many men rejected by his predecessors and whose records at police headquarters showed that they had been arrested for various offenses.

False Oaths to Get Jobs.

In answer to this and to instance after instance of men who had obtained appointment through false oaths as to age and other qualifications, as pointed out by Emery B. Buckner, who conducted the examination, the Commissioner declared he had put his whole trust in the Civil Service Commission and had appointed men in one-two-three order from the commission's lists without having his own department make the slightest investigation into the character of the men.

The Police Bureau, which had previously made such investigations as a check upon the Civil Service, was abolished by Commissioner Waldo, "because," as he said, "I wanted to dispense with graft and rumors of graft and to put the whole responsibility upon the Civil Service, where it belonged."

Lieutenant John J. Stanton, formerly in charge of that bureau, was brought in as a witness, interrupting the examination of testimony, and estimated that during his command of the bureau 10 per cent. of the men certified by the Civil Service were rejected after he had investigated.

Applicants over forty years old tried to pass as thirty on bogus birth certificates, he said, and he declared he had heard of a place on the East Side where bogus certificates were manufactured to order.

Commissioner Waldo, returning to the stand, was asked if he knew of such a certificate factory. "No," he replied to Mr. Buckner, "do you?"

"Yes, I do," the attorney answered, but he later said he did not know where it was.

Promoted Accused Men.

Waldo said no changes in the law are necessary under the present administration. The system is "perfect."

Waldo believes it better to appoint a few undesirable men to the department and promote "here and there" a man whose record is in question than to break his rule of making all appointments and promotions in regular order from the Civil Service lists.

Charges were pending against Lieutenant Reith and another lieutenant when he became commissioner on May 23, last year, but he promoted them to be captains on May 29, without investigating these charges.

Waldo said he never received any charges against Winfield R. Sheehan, his secretary, and never investigated any of the reports which reached him concerning Sheehan.

TEACHERS MUST AID PARENTS TO TEACH MORALS, SAYS DYER

"It is the duty of parents to teach morals, and I'm afraid that too many parents have been depending upon teachers to train children in the virtues," Superintendent of Schools Franklin R. Dyer told the Boston Elementary School Teachers' Association in Huntington Hall.

"Parents should do their part, and I appeal to you as teachers to influence fathers and mothers to develop the spiritual side of their children.

"Parents must teach their children the old-fashioned virtues, industry, honesty, obedience and respect, or our cities will become dens of wickedness.

"It is time for us to hold inspiration meetings in schoolhouses evenings, to which parents should be invited to hear able addresses on patriotism and the old-fashioned virtues."

Helen Keller Nurses Friend Brings Cheer to Mrs. Macy

HELEN KELLER (on left) AND TUTOR, MRS. JOHN A. MACY

Miss Helen Keller has put aside for an indefinite time her precious, cherished plan of serving on the Municipal Welfare Board of Schenectady, N. Y., in order to be of what service she can here during the illness of her more-than-friend, Mrs. John A. Macy.

Grasping eagerly at one of the few occasions when she can help Mrs. Macy, Miss Keller has thrown aside, temporarily at least, all thought of going to Schenectady and of serving on this welfare board.

What a sacrifice it means to the blind girl none can appreciate rightly who has not realized the intense, burning ambition of Miss Keller to take up this position in Schenectady. It meant to her that she was actually serving as a public officer on a public commission, doing welfare work and demonstrating in anglice way that her life has been raised to practical use, as well as to high example.

Comforts Old Friend.

Miss Keller has cheerfully prepared to go to Schenectady. Now she has called off all plans for that so that she can be at Mrs. Macy's bedside as much as possible.

Mrs. Macy, Miss Keller's famous and wonderful teacher, through whom Miss Keller has been led to happiness, is convalescing in Vincent Memorial Hospital from an operation.

Today, as she has for the past week, Miss Keller called at the hospital to talk with Mrs. Macy and to cheer her. She will remain in Boston as long as Mrs. Macy is ill.

The anxiety of Miss Keller to do anything or everything for Mrs. Macy is pathetic. It combines the trusting love and devotion of a child with the unselfish service that comes only with mature years.

For the last quarter of a century Mrs. Macy has devoted her life to Helen Keller, [illegible] was the latter was brought, deaf, dumb and blind, from the South to the Perkins Institute for the Blind.

MRS. GIBSON AIDS HUSBAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Burton W. Gibson, wife of the lawyer held in jail at Goshen for the killing of the Countess Szabo, his client, today declared that Gibson is innocent, and declared she would work day and night to aid his counsel in freeing him at the trial.

That one of the most remarkable stories of mistaken identity ever told in the courts will be unfolded in the defence of Gibson is the assertion of ex-Assistant Attorney Robert H. Elder and Charles Goldaker, his attorneys.

Mr. Goldaker said that Gibson did not believe that the woman whom he knew as Mrs. Mitter was the Mrs. Szabo who had murdered and slain in Vienna.

"The woman who was Mr. Gibson's client," said Mr. Goldaker, "was not the sister of Frank Monchik. The facts were given to me by Gibson. The woman that Gibson knew could both read and write, and so she could not be the same woman that George Telchman his testified could neither read nor write. The dead woman had a mother and she lives in Chicago. We will demand that he put her mother on the stand.

"Mrs. Gibson is going to be of great assistance to us in this case," said Mr. Goldaker, when Mrs. Gibson was found in his office. "In a way she is going to act as our counsel, and already we have found her advice of great value. She has insisted on this, and we believe that she possesses remarkable ability."

Enrollment Ballot—Good for 1,000 Votes

I hereby enroll as a candidate in the American's $40,000 Prize Contest.

NAME.....

STREET AND NO.....

CITY OR TOWN.....

Only the first enrollment ballot received for each candidate will count for 1,000 votes if received before September 22. Fill out all the lines of this ballot very carefully and mail AT ONCE to the American Contest Editor, P. O. Box 3047, Boston, Mass.

YOU WILL GET DETAILED INFORMATION WHEN YOUR ENROLLMENT IS RECEIVED. DON'T DELAY! SEND IT NOW! !

Read Carefully—Then Enroll Today! Now Is the Time to Enter!

The Contest The Boston AMERICAN'S $40,000 Contest is a subscription and voting competition which is open to every man, woman and child in New England, irrespective of age, except employes of the AMERICAN and their families. Forty thousand dollars in Cash and Prizes will be awarded. The contest opens Sunday, September 22, 1912, and ends February 28.

The Candidates Every man, woman or child who is a legal resident of New England is eligible to compete. Participation in any previous AMERICAN contest does not debar anyone.

The Enrollment Each candidate must be regularly enrolled from his or her permanent address on the ENROLLMENT BALLOT provided for that purpose, which appears daily in the AMERICAN.

The first Enrollment Ballot received before the contest opens on Sunday, September 22, will count for 1,000 votes. Only the FIRST ENROLLMENT will count for a vote credit.

The Vote Coupons Vote Coupons from the daily or Sunday AMERICAN will count. One vote coupon will appear in each issue of the AMERICAN (daily and Sunday) during the life of this contest. Each vote coupon in the daily AMERICAN will be good for 5 votes. Each vote coupon in the Sunday AMERICAN will be good for 25 votes.

Each vote coupon will be good for two weeks from the date printed in the AMERICAN and valueless if received after two weeks.

Vote coupons should be tied together in bundles of 100, keeping the 5-vote coupons separate from the 25-vote coupons. All contestants are requested to use a rubber stamp containing contestant's name and address and district number. Only the top three or four coupons in each bundle of 100 need be stamped. Votes should be sent in one bundle, with contestant's name and address and district number and the total number of votes said to be contained in package marked on the OUTSIDE of the WRAPPER.

The Subscription Plan A vote credit will be allowed for subscriptions turned in for the Sunday AMERICAN (subscriptions to the daily AMERICAN will not be received).

You do not have to collect subscriptions in advance, but as an evidence of good faith each Sunday AMERICAN subscription turned in must be accompanied by a small cash GUARANTEE payment.

The GUARANTEE payment is required to make the contest absolutely fair and equal to everyone, and as an assurance of good faith of the subscriber in giving the order and of the candidate in turning it in. The GUARANTEE PLAN will help all candidates greatly, because only a SMALL AMOUNT in cash is required, and that simply as an evidence of good faith.

Length of Subscription.	Guarantee Required.	Vote Credit.
6 MONTHS	25 CENTS	1,500
12 MONTHS	50 CENTS	3,500
36 MONTHS	100 CENTS	7,500

This cash guarantee, in each case, will be deposited with the AMERICAN'S Auditing Department as an evidence of good faith on the part of both subscriber and contestant. Every person who subscribes to the Sunday AMERICAN agrees to accept and pay for the paper regularly at the regular newsdealer's rate during the term subscribed for. The guarantee received in each case will not apply to the cost of the subscription until near the time of expiration. All subscribers must begin to pay for the paper regularly, beginning with the newsdealer's first delivery, with the understanding that the guarantee paid in each case will be deducted from the cost of the LATTER PART of the subscription in copies of the Sunday AMERICAN without charge TO THE AMOUNT of the guarantee whatever it might be).

Delivery of Papers Each subscription blank will contain a blank space in which subscribers may write the name and address of any newsdealer or newsboy whom subscribers may prefer to have deliver the paper.

Just as soon as subscriptions are received at the Contest Department an order will be sent to a newsdealer or newsboy in subscriber's district, giving instructions for immediate delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN for the term subscribed for. The newsdealer will then start delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN and will collect from subscriber each week, except for the term at the LAST END of the subscription, covered by the guarantee paid, at which time he will deliver copies of the Sunday AMERICAN without charge to the value of the guarantee amount paid.

The Winners The one who receives the largest number of votes, irrespective of districts, will be awarded the capital prize. The ones who receive the largest number of votes in each district will be awarded the prizes as scheduled. In the event of total votes for any contestants who win being tied, similar prizes will be given to each winner so tied.

Special Notice The AMERICAN will not be responsible for any subscription sent in through the mails in any form other than post-office money order, express order or certified check, addressed to American Contest Department, P. O. Box 3047, Boston, Mass. Cash sent through the mails will be sent at the risk of the person sending it.

Votes cannot be transferred from one contestant to another after receipt of same by the AMERICAN.

No person can win more than one prize.

The AMERICAN reserves the right to amend these rules and conditions from time to time, if it may seem necessary, in order to protect all contestants from any possible contingency which may arise.

The Contest Editor will decide all disputed questions carefully and in good faith, and his decisions shall be final and conclusive.

First Vote Coupon in Tomorrow's Sunday American!

CLIP COUPON TODAY IN $40,000 CONTEST

The man or woman, boy or girl, in New England, who cuts out the Enrollment Ballot today and at once enters the Sunday AMERICAN'S $40,000 voting contest, will be credited IMMEDIATELY with 1,000 votes.

This offer of 1,000 votes expires tonight at midnight. Those who would benefit by it must clip the Enrollment Ballot and mail it to the Contest Editor at once.

The voting contest for the Sunday AMERICAN'S 1,501 prizes begins tomorrow.

These prizes are valued at $40,000.

The first grand prize is $10,000 in cash.

No such prize was ever before offered to its readers by a New England newspaper.

New England has been divided into five districts. For each district there are 800 prizes.

In each district there will be a cash prize of $1,000 to the district leader.

The leader over all—the contestant with the largest number of votes—gets the $10,000.

What Ballots Count.

The ballot to be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN of tomorrow, and in every SUNDAY paper from now until the close of the contest, will be good for TWENTY-FIVE VOTES.

The ballot to be printed in the AMERICAN of Monday, and in every DAILY paper from now until the end of the contest, will count for FIVE VOTES.

It is conceivable that one of our readers might win a prize—the $10,000 prize, indeed—through the use of five-vote and 25-vote coupons.

To add zest to the contest, however—and to add another 100,000 to the 400,000 who now buy the Sunday AMERICAN every week—1,500 votes are given to every contestant who sends in a six-months' subscription, 3,500 votes for a twelve-months' subscription, and 7,500 for a thirty-six months' subscription to the Sunday AMERICAN.

Those who clip the Enrollment Ballot printed today and MAIL IT TODAY start in the $10,000 race—for everybody will have his eye on the first prize—with 1,000 votes.

Inasmuch as the race is beginning with tomorrow, the Enrollment Ballot will be printed for some time to come.

After today, however, it will not be worth 1,000 votes.

Next week the Enrollment Ballot will count for only 800 votes; the week after, for something less; the following week something less; and so on.

You Can Win.

There is no reason in the world why YOU cannot win one of these 1,501 prizes.

There is no reason why YOU cannot be the winner of the $10,000.

This $10,000 will be paid in cash.

There will be no "ifs" or "ands" about it.

There is no string to it.

The Sunday AMERICAN will have at least 100,000 new readers at the close of this great contest.

The Sunday AMERICAN will be glad to distribute $40,000 in prizes among those who help to swell its circulation list.

Study the offer and the detailed explanation printed on another page, tell yourself your own chance of winning the $10,000 is as good as anybody else's, fill out the Enrollment Ballot, drop it in a letter box before midnight, and start with 1,000 votes to your credit.

YOU know what you can do with $10,000. You WANT $10,000.

It is waiting in this office for you, a reward for courage, persistency and a little effort among your friends and acquaintances.

For a number of days the thousands of New Englanders who are interested in this great contest have been following the adventures of the Winne family—Mr. and Mrs. John Winne and their children—who live in the Madison-Calvert apartment house but who are planning to win the $10,000 prize and buy a place on the River Road.

The purpose of this story of the Winnes was to suggest a variety of ways in which such a family, similarly situated, MIGHT conduct a campaign for Sunday AMERICAN votes.

Now that the contest is about to begin, we shall hear no more about the Winnes.

The following letter is at hand:

Imaginaryville, Sept. 21, 1912.

Contest Editor, Boston AMERICAN.

Dear Sir: Now that the contest is about to begin, I should be very much pleased if you will say no more about the methods my family has adopted in our campaign for Sunday AMERICAN votes.

It is hardly fair to us to tell everybody in New England what we are doing. You have practically given our secrets to the world, as it is.

In a way the publicity has been helpful. Our town and county are with us in the contest. Local pride demands that the Winnes must win.

But this publicity has served its purpose, so far as we are concerned, and more might injure us.

We are in the contest to stay. We are bound to win.

I hope that some of the contestants have written to ask if there really IS a Winne family.

There has got to be a WIN family—hasn't there?—if not mine, somebody else's.

I wish the WIN family all the luck in the world, and all the happiness and content that will come from holding ten thousand dollars in one's hands and knowing that while the wolf may come as far as the front gate he can never again get in.

Sincerely yours,
MARTHA (MRS. JOHN) WINNE.

And so we take leave of the Winne family, or, at least, the Winne family takes leave of us.

But there is still—somewhere in New England—a WIN family.

Which IS the Win family?

It may be YOURS.

Fill out the Enrollment Blank today—while it is still worth 1,000 votes—but you can get in no other way—and mail it to the Contest Editor.

Ten thousand dollars, IN CASH, is certainly worth an effort.

MARIAN M'VICKAR SAILS FOR SCOTLAND SADDER AND WISER

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The police made special arrangements whereby Marian McVickar Foster, the eighteen-year-old girl arrested here on September 9 with Harry E. Nolan, who was to have been secretary of the United States legation at Panama, sailed today for her home in Scotland. Her case was to come up tonight before Magistrate Barlow, but the technical charge of vagrancy against her will be dismissed without her appearing. On the trip by boat to this city she met Nolan. They registered at a Broadway hotel, and were detained by the police on complaint of a steamship officer, in whose custody the girl had been placed. Nolan was released a few days later, a charge of abduction having been dismissed. He has given up his appointment to Panama as a result of the trouble with the girl.

NEW YORK STEAMERS FOR GRAND TRUNK TO BE READY NEXT MAY

The Grand Trunk Railway will receive the fast freight and passenger steamers it is to operate between New York and Providence in connection with its new line from Palmer, Mass., to Providence, next May, it is announced from Montreal.

It is expected that the line between Montreal and Providence will be in operation early next year, giving the Grand Trunk, through the Grand Trunk Pacific, direct connection between Atlantic waters and its whole system. The freight and passenger steamers will operate daily between Providence and New York.

ENGLAND KEEPS MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Frederick Starkey of Bristol, a "man without a country," will be allowed to remain in England, Starkey was arrested on a charge of theft. On telling the court that he was an American he was deported, but on reaching the United States he was refused admission as an undesirable alien.

Come Fans, Boost the Auto Fund

Don't Delay Your Contribution

The winning of the world's championship by the Boston team should not only be a matter of pride to Boston citizens, but as a business proposition it is worth a good deal to the city.—From Mayor Fitzgerald's letter contributing $25 to the Jake Stahl auto fund.

Mayor Fitzgerald has endorsed the proposition to give Jake Stahl an automobile in appreciation of Stahl's services to the city of Boston in winning the American League pennant.

Not only has the Mayor endorsed the proposition as one that should be carried out by the people of Boston, but he has given it more substantial recognition by drawing on his own funds for $25 to help it along.

The Mayor of Boston is not a rich man, and he has many calls on his private purse. Of all of these calls he considered the Stahl auto project one of the most worthy, and sent along his check.

The Mayor is one of the kind of men who not only believes in saying things OUGHT to be done, but he DOES them.

EVERYBODY SHOULD CONTRIBUTE.

His example should be copied. There are more than a million persons in Greater Boston. Fully a half million of them are baseball mad over the triumph of the Red Sox. All this half million agree with Mayor Fitzgerald and the Boston AMERICAN. If each one of the half million gave one cent to the fund, it would reach $5,000 immediately. Of course, that is impractical in the short time that remains to raise the fund.

But it IS practical for every man, woman and child who reads this article and thinks that Boston ought to do something worth while to show its appreciation of what Stahl has done to immediately put 25 cents in an envelope, address it to the Sporting Editor of the Boston AMERICAN and drop it in the nearest mail box.

We don't need BIG subscriptions. This is to be a gift from ALL Boston—the poor and rich alike.

Everybody can afford a little bit. Nobody need be ashamed to make a SMALL subscription. That is the kind of gifts that is wanted. A dollar given in this cause is as great in proportion as $25,000 given for some other public purpose.

Everybody agrees that Boston should do something to show that the city appreciates what Stahl and his men have done. Now, if everybody will help it will be done. Somebody must take the lead, and that is why this newspaper has opened its columns to the subscription fund.

YOU ARE THE MAN TO DO IT.

YOU, Mr. Baseball Fan, who reads this story, are the man who should do a little something. DON'T WAIT! Don't rely on the other fellow. He may be relying on YOU. Probably he IS.

You want Boston to do this. And YOU are urged to help right now.

Don't be afraid that the fund will be too great and that YOUR subscription may not be needed. If there is too much money, the excess will be returned.

Please contribute at once, and let's make it a big fund—one worthy of Boston and what Jake Stahl has done for the city.

Follow the example of your Mayor and send along your contribution.

Fred Lake's Story of 1909 Sox-Giants Series

Ex-Red Sox Manager Describes Fourth Battle

By FRED LAKE

"MUGGSY" McGRAW smiled blandly when he handed the umpire his lineup before the fourth game of the Giants-Red Sox series. The little chieftain thought that the game was already won as he had selected Christopher Mathewson, recognized as the greatest pitcher in the game, to do the honors on the mound.

Matty had beaten us in the opening game by a score of 4 to 2. True, my boys had hit "Big Six" hard but the "fadeaway king" always tightened up in the pinches and made the heavy Red Sox hitters eat out of the palm of his hand.

Matty has always performed best when his team is literally up against it. We had won two victories while the Giants had gathered in but one game. Therefore if we won the fourth game we were practically certain of capturing the series, while if the New Yorkers triumphed they would still have a grand chance to win out. That is why McGraw planned his hopes on the stalwart Mathewson.

I did not want to again put Joe Wood against the Giants' star. I realized that Joe was one of the greatest pitchers in the American League, although he was only nineteen years of age, but I thought that it would be asking too much of the youngster to send him into the box against Mathewson again.

Ray Collins Picked.

Ray Collins had not worked in the series and was in good condition. We had picked up Collins from the University of Vermont where he had made an enviable record. Matty big league managers wouldn't have selected Collins to pitch that day. They would have argued that he lacked the experience to battle with Matty. But I was sure that Ray was equal to the task and that he would perform even better when opposing a veteran, than he would against a man just breaking into the game. And Collins made good.

I have seldom seen a big league pitcher do so well as Collins did that day, while five scattered hits, while two of them were lucky ones. Five Giants reached first on hits, three on passes, while three others reached the initial sack after forcing men at second.

We scored our first run in the opening inning. With two down Speaker singled. Matty tried to fool Stahl on a fast curve but Jake was expecting such a ball and hammered it down the right field foul line for three bases.

The Red Sox tallied again in the eighth. Harry Hooper was the first man up and the fleet Californian beat out a bunt. Collins attempted to sacrifice but Mathewson fielded the ball in time to get Hooper at second.

Harry Lord proved his worth by driving out a rattling single which sent Collins to second. Tenney then scored a minute late with the second and final run of the game on Speaker's single.

Speaker Hit Matty.

Tris did not experience a great deal of difficulty in solving Matty's delivery and got three hits out of four times at the bat.

The playing of Amby McConnell at second base was the fielding feature of the day. McConnell played remarkable ball, his wonderful speed and headwork cutting down several New York runs. McConnell made four putouts while he accepted five difficult chances without a miscue.

Harry Lord also fielded brilliantly at third base. He made one putout and three assists. The Red Sox did not make a single error, while the Giants made one. "Red" Murray was the offender. He dropped a hard hit ball after a long run.

I was elated over our victory over the Giants. I knew that we had them on the run and that we would be able to capture the fifth game of the series on the following day.

Merkle's "well oiled machine" had failed to make good. It had been routed by a team of young ballplayers just breaking into the game. The New York veterans had played the game to the limit, but they had met their masters. We had beaten their trump card—Christy Mathewson. That is why we were certain that we would sweep all before us in the next game of the series which was scheduled to be played at New York.

I have never known of a young man to win such diamond laurels as the sturdy Vermont youth did. New York made but

RED SOX PILGRIMS RILEY'S COLUMN

MARTY KRUG dropped a measly little pop-up fly from Ty Cobb's bat in the third inning. Then and there went to smash Joseph Wood's hopes of winning a world's record. Now, IF "Heinie" Wagner—BUT, "Heinie" wasn't there, and—well—well we were about to make a remark, but the proprietor of this newspaper has insisted that we "omit things that will offend nice people," and, since, being in the sporting business we are not supposed to know just what "nice people" means—whether we should adopt the sporting idea or the exact English language idea of the word—the proprietor must have meant the latter—read the dictionary—that's where we got our "info" and since—well, since it's going to be another long, hard Winter, and coal comes high in Boston, we guess we'll go over to the corner among ourselves say what we think in good old-fashioned American, and let it go at that. You'll have to guess what we started to say. We guess you can guess, all right.

* * *

JOSEPH WOOD has been a particularly good friend of this column. Any time we have been shy of something else to talk about, we could always talk about Wood. He went ahead and won thirty-two baseball games while he was losing four of the same kind. Nobody else ever did likewise. The last sixteen of those ball games—before Marty Krug dropped that pop-up fly in Detroit yesterday—Joe Wood won all in a row. That gave Joe a tie with Walter Johnson for the American League record of consecutive victories.

* * *

IF Joe could only have won one more—get the "won one"—say it and you'll understand just like the fellow who said in "nie eight eggs"), somehow it's hard to spell it when you talk it—you always get the "right" ahead of the "ate," or the "one" ahead of the "won"—well, Mr. Bones, if he had only won one more we would not have had to prove that Joe Wood is a greater pitcher of baseball than Walter Johnson is.

* * *

BECAUSE, everybody knows that seventeen are greater than sixteen and, if Joe Wood could have one won—we mean won one more—if Marty Krug hadn't dropped that pop-up fly—if "Heinie" Wagner had been back on the job—if the pennant had not been won a few days since—well, we've got to prove it; that's all. (We're not talking about the Pirates now—you know, Miller, Hunter, Gibson, Wilson, that's all; we said THAT'S ALL). We've got to prove it.

* * *

PROVE what? Oh, we forgot. We've got to prove that Joe Wood is a greater pitcher than Walter Johnson. Well, here goes:

* * *

HERE are Joe Wood's sixteen successive victories which preceded yesterday's defeat:

Date.	Club.	Score.
July 12	St. Louis	7- 2
July 22	Detroit	5- 3
July 25	Detroit	7- 5
July 28	Cleveland	4- 1
Aug. 2	Detroit	4- 0
Aug. 5	Chicago	8- 7
Aug. 7	Chicago	10- 1
Aug. 11	St. Louis	3- 2
Aug. 15	Chicago	4- 3
Aug. 17	Chicago	4- 0
Aug. 20	Cleveland	4- 2
Aug. 23	Detroit	8- 1
Totals		92-38

* * *

THE question everybody raises is, "If Walter Johnson were pitching for the Red Sox would Wood be greater than Johnson?" There it goes again, "would Wood?" The answer is "Wood would." Then there's that "if" again. But we'll recognize the gloomy bird with the "if" just long enough to call his attention to the fact that Joe Wood's team-mates, the Red Sox, made only seventy-six runs to help him win those sixteen straight games, while Walter Johnson's team-mates, the Senators, made ninety-two runs to help HIM win his sixteen straight. And we'll also call your attention, ladies and gentlemen, to the fact that Joe Wood's opponents made only twenty-seven runs against Joe Wood, while Walter Johnson's opponents made thirty-eight runs against Walter Johnson. We'll also remark, citizens, that Joe Wood pitched HIS sixteen successive victories against every other team EXCEPT THE ATHLETICS, and including the Senators, while Walter Johnson pitched HIS sixteen straight victories against every other team in the league EXCEPT THE ATHLETICS AND THE RED SOX. Does that help you answer the question?

* * *

DO those figures convince you of anything? Don't they answer that question, "IF" Johnson were pitching for the Red Sox would Wood be greater than Johnson?" Wood? Wood? Wood would!

Ban Johnson Favors Red Sox Handling Their Own Tickets

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21.—Ban R. Johnson, president of the American League, has conferred with James R. McAleer, president of the Boston Red Sox, anent the ticket sale of the coming World's Series.

Mr. Johnson stated that he had not receded from the position he took last Fall, to the effect that the American League will stand sponsor for the sale of tickets in Boston and the National League will have to be responsible for the sale in New York.

The American League president is determined that the public finger will not be pointed at baseball, so far as the organization is concerned, this Fall. A year ago there was a ticket scandal that set the world talking. Mr. Johnson at that time hinted that the National Leaguers were responsible. He insisted on an investigation. The National League members of the National Commission did not approve of Johnson's action and the investigation was squashed.

"The American League will stand responsible for every ticket that is sold in the American League city and the National League will have to do the same in its own town," said Mr. Johnson.

TITLE IN A. A. U. HANGS BY POINT

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 21.—With the New York A. C. winner of the junior championships over the Irish-American A. C. of New York by one point in the two-day athletic carnival which is being held at Forbes park field, the senior A. A. U. events today were expected to furnish the keenest struggle between these rivals that American athletes have seen in many a day.

Although the early morning weather was foggy, there was very little wind, and the athletes declared themselves as satisfied with prevailing conditions.

While but one new record was hung up in the junior events, a number of old ones were equalled, and with perfect weather and track conditions today it was confidently believed that the rivalry between the Irish-American and New York Athletic clubs would be productive of new high marks in more than one branch of the games.

Harvard Squad to End Light Practice

This morning will see the final practice of the week for the Harvard football men, and probably the last light practice they will have until a few days before the Yale and Princeton games.

The failing of the mercury and the beginning of freer muscle play as the work progresses, are putting snap into the play that was lacking during the enervating weather of the earlier week. The arrival of Bob Fisher, Doc Leslie and Charlie Daly to help in the coaching has also given "pep" to the practice.

There will probably be no scrimmaging today, but simply a continuation of the preliminary work of passing, falling on the ball, starting, tackling the dummy, pushing the charging machine, practicing the crawl step, punting, drop kicking, kicking off and forming for the candidates for back field positions and centre.

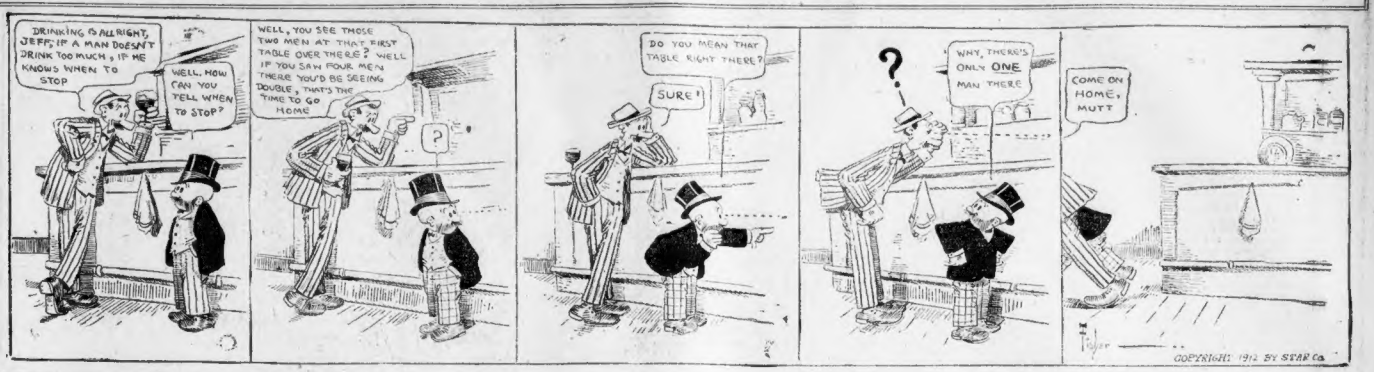
FANS PLANNING GREAT WELCOME TO CHAMPION RED SOX

Yes, Yes, It Was Time for Mutt to Go Home — By "Bud" Fisher



Great Interest in Welcome of Champion Red Sox

Talk Final Plans at Big Mass Meeting Tomorrow

Prominent Speakers Will Address "Fans" at National Theatre; Miss Nash to Sing "Tessie."

The preliminary plans incident to the reception of the Red Sox have reached such proportions that even the most enthusiastic have been surprised.

So eager are the fans of Boston and New England to pay homage to the gladiators that it has been made imperative to nominate a committee of arrangements for the big mass meeting at the National Theatre on Sunday afternoon.

Remember that Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock this big meeting begins.

Here is the committee that will have charge of the big mass meeting:

Max Mitchell, vice-president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

Fred E. Wright, manager of the Plymouth Theatre.

C. James Connolly, vice-president Boston Baseball Club.

W. T. A. Fitzgerald, register of deeds.

Francis M. Carroll.

The gallant pennant winners will arrive on Monday at 3:35 at the South Station.

The first edition of the AMERICAN on Monday will explain everything. President McAleer of the Red Sox will send a telegram to the AMERICAN on Sunday. It will be read at the mass meeting. It will tell just when the winners will arrive in town.

Secretary McRoy Interested.

The success of the mass meeting at the National Theatre on Sunday has been assured. Hundreds of suggestions have been received by the AMERICAN.

It has been conceded that the important duty of the fans gathered at the mass meeting will be to form a working committee that will make the reception a bowling success. Hundreds of names have been suggested for places on that committee. Here are a few:

Harry E. Russell, insurance agent.

W. F. Fitzgerald, banker.

Thomas W. Lawson, broker.

Alexander Steinert, piano manufacturer.

Harry L. Burrage, banker.

Archie Hurlburt, manager of the Boston Tavern.

Of course the fans who gather on Sunday afternoon at the National Theatre will select the committee. These names are merely suggested as ones who would serve in that capacity. They are all loyal fans and all box holders at the Fenway Park.

Secretary McRoy of the Red Sox is eager to have the team given a hearty welcome upon its return to this city. He says:

"The baseball players appreciate the support that Boston fans have given them. They will be delighted with the reception they will receive. It is really unfortunate that every man on the team cannot be present at the big mass meeting Sunday afternoon."

MADELINE NASH, TO SING "TESSIE" AT MEETING

You know the AMERICAN promised you a surprise for today. Here it is: Johnnie Kling, manager of the Boston Nationals, says that he will be present at the mass meeting. "All of the players in our team will be there," he says. "Every man on our team wants to see the Red Sox win. We will be at the mass meeting and have a voice in the proceedings."

Everybody concedes that there will be several thousand fans at the South Station to greet the warriors. The question now is this: How many are going to attend the mass meeting? That will certainly be some meeting. There will be plenty of music. One of the big attractions will be the act of Miss Madeline Dooley Nash. She will sing that famous song, "Tessie." Every fan remembers that song helped Boston to win the world's championship in 1903.

Many Features Planned.

The words of this song will be published in the Sunday AMERICAN. It will stir the blood in every baseball fan in New England. The orchestra will play this famous melody. And everybody will be able to join in the chorus.

Another attraction for those who attend the mass meeting will be the act of "Dick" Sears, the star photographer of the AMERICAN. Mr. Sears will, with the use of slides, show you pictures of the famous baseball stars. These pictures are full of action and bring home to every fan the real stirring plays of the season.

Mr. Sears will explain each and every picture. He will tell you about the intricate plays.

And there will be other acts of equal importance. The entire program of this big event, the biggest in the history of baseballdom in this city, will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN.

A suggestion received yesterday dealing with the manner in which the returning heroes shall be received is an exceptionally good one. The writer suggests that the Red Sox be met at the South Station, escorted up Summer street, down Washington street, up School street, down Tremont street to the band stand on the Common. The writer suggests that some orator be selected to welcome the Red Sox home. This is a valuable suggestion, but must be acted upon at the mass meeting.

One thing has been requested by the committee of arrangements. There are several athletic associations in Greater Boston. Every member of these organizations is invited to attend Sunday's meeting, and also the actual reception on Monday or Tuesday. The more the merrier. Bring your banners, pennants, etc. The Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will have other important announcements.

Read the AMERICAN. It is doing its part toward greeting the Red Sox. You must do yours. Then attend the mass meeting. You will have a voice in the meeting. It is free to all. National Theatre, 3 p. m., Sunday afternoon. Good music. Good talent. Splendid speakers.

McDonald Is Sought by Manager Dooin

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—Charley Dooin, manager of the Phillies, is anxious to secure the services of Eddie McDonald of the Boston club. McDonald was told to report to the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League, but he refused to go.

Some time ago waivers were asked on a bunch of Pilgrims, but Manager Dooin, believing that it was a "stall," and that the announcement was made to get some "pep" into the team, passed them by, but when he found out that the Boston management was really sincere in wishing to dispose of McDonald he sought an opportunity to purchase the Hub player.

Manager Dooin is an admirer of the Buffalo lad and is of the opinion that McDonald has the makings of one of the grandest third basemen in the game. Dooin has wired the Boston management asking them to put a price on McDonald.

Yale Candidates Are Put to Test Today

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 21.—The Yale football squad will get its first real tryout today.

The strongest of the scrub elevens, augmented with freshmen as fast as they are needed, will be sent against the so-called "varsity, which will be thoroughly tested.

The coaches have picked out the strongest team, and the eleven will be: Gallaher, left end; Warren, left tackle; Randall, left guard; Ketcham, centre; Cooney, right guard; Harbison, right tackle; Romeisler, right end; Cornish, quarterback; Phillips, left halfback; Spalding, right halfback; Mitchell, fullback.

Romeisler will stay in only a short time, and let Avery go in. It will be the first test for the guards, tackles, and Cornish and Mitchell.

BAD ROAD PREVENTS VANDERBILT RACE

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 21.—The Vanderbilt cup race was officially called off shortly before 10 o'clock today as the result of the bad condition of the course. Unless the heavy rain continues the race will be held Monday or Tuesday.

CAVANAUGH DISSATISFIED.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 21.—Coach Cavanaugh is dissatisfied with the quality of material from which he has to mould a team, and as a result the whole college is being thoroughly searched for big men to strengthen the line.

In a twenty-three-minute scrimmage yesterday the line was especially weak on defence, the second-string men continually breaking through time and time again for decided gains. Whitney was pinged at right half for the first time and his work featured.

Important Notice to Baseball Candidates

All candidates are notified that all coupons now being printed are valueless after October 4 at 12 o'clock noon. This means that all votes must actually be received at the Contest Department at that hour on that day, mail matter included.

A complete list of the standing of each candidate who had to his or her credit 10,000 votes or over up to last Wednesday at 11 a. m. will be printed in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Watch for it!

Olympic Athlete in Brockton Fair Race

This year's Marathon held on Friday, October 4 from the B. A. A. Club House to the grounds of the Brockton Fair is to be the biggest event of its kind ever held in New England with the exception of the annual B. A. A. run on Patriots' Day.

The entry list now completed shows that some of the most noted long distance runners in the East will take part in the event this year.

Clarence DeMar, the winner of the race to Brockton a year ago, stated that he would be a starter and Andrew Sockalexis, the Indian runner, has also signified his intention of taking a part in this race.

The management of the Brockton Fair athletics, Horace Keith, has so arranged his prizes this year that a total of nearly $1,000 more is added to the long list of valuables offered in previous years.

For the Marathon run alone an addition of $500 in prize money has been offered. This means that the prizes offered will be the handsomest and most valuable that the amateurs of this section have had a chance to compete for.

The entries for the Marathon close with Horace Keith, Brockton, on September 25.

RED SOX DELIGHTED AT PLANS FOR THEIR WELCOME TO BOSTON

The following telegram was received by the AMERICAN today:

Detroit, Sept. 20, 1912.
Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

President McAleer is not here. Showed Stahl telegram and he is perfectly delighted that Mayor Fitzgerald and other prominent citizens are so interested in the Red Sox. All members of the club will go through to the South Station, arriving Monday afternoon at 2:55. Stahl and all the other players extend hearty thanks to the Boston public for their manifestations of good will.

(Signed) E. L. RILEY,
Secretary to Pres. McAleer.

A. H. Woods, the theatrical producer, jumped into the running on the welcome by wiring:

Jake Stahl, Detroit, Mich.:

Will you, the boys and their families accept invitation to attend performance of "The Woman Haters' Club" at the Tremont Theatre Tuesday night? It is the biggest success in Boston and next to the Red Sox' glorious victory the most talked of topic in the city.

(Signed) A. H. WOODS.

Back came the glad answer:

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20, 1912.
A. H. Woods, Tremont Theatre, Boston, Mass.:

Players will accept your kind invitation.

SCHOOL ELEVENS IN ACTION TODAY

SCHOOL GAMES TODAY.

Waltham High vs. New Bedford High at Waltham.
Revere High vs. Alumni at Revere.
Beverly High vs. Winthrop High at Beverly.
Gardner High vs. Worcester Classical at Gardner.
Springfield High vs. Agry Academy at Springfield.
Mission Academy vs. Wrentham High at Monson.
Prospects Academy vs. Colonial High at Concord, N. H.

Although the big opening of the high school football season does not occur until next week, there are a few elevens carded for games this afternoon.

The most important game is slated for Waltham, where New Bedford High will play. Waltham has already been through a game and should be in better shape than the boys from the Whaling City.

Last year the New Bedford boys went to Waltham, and although they presented a husky team, they were not well versed in football, and the result was a defeat.

Waltham should win today, but cities like New Bedford can gather such big football players that it is not safe to bank too strongly on the Waltham eleven, with the advantages the present game offers for the bigger teams.

Winthrop High and Beverly High will meet at Beverly this afternoon. Neither team has had much hard practice and nothing startling is expected today. Revere High will try out against the alumni eleven this afternoon. Other interesting games are also scheduled.

Kubiak "Comes Back" to the Police Force

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—Al Kubiak, the heavyweight pugilist who resigned from the local police force to re-enter the prize ring, will probably have to return to his night stick, for he has failed to "come back." Gunboat Smith of California outpointed Kubiak in six slow rounds at the ringside A. A. last night, although the Michigan giant had the advantage of twenty-five pounds in weight.

Hunting a Husband

No. 38—Dr. Haynes Refuses the Widow's Luncheon Invitation

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

WHEN the plans for Jean's motor trip to Pleasanton had been fully discussed, it was decided that the little girl was to be taken to Mrs. Robbins' home and left there, in charge of the Robbins maid, until her mother should arrive.

"Well," said Dr. Haynes, as he arose to his feet, "that's settled, and as I do not seem to be able to be of any further service here, I think I will be going."

"But won't you stay to a pick-up luncheon with us?" asked Beatrice, with some embarrassment. She was never at her best with this man, and she was aware of it. She felt that he understood her too well, and this fact confused her.

Women, as a class, think that they are enigmas to the opposite sex, and they often are. But Dr. Haynes had remained proof against the feminine wiles which Beatrice had used effectively upon other men, and he piqued her; and, sometimes, disconcerted her by his evident comprehension of many of her desires and impulses. He declined her invitation to remain to luncheon, pleading office hours as his excuse. His hostess followed him into the little hall where, at the door, he paused.

"Now—ah—Mrs. Miller," he began, hesitatingly. "I'm awfully sorry that my car isn't big enough to take you all out to Pleasanton with me. But it is only a run-about, you know, and will hold two comfortably, and no more. I'm taking the little girl because I think she needs the drive most, and I'm leaving you behind for the reason that the small boy gave for not eating his cake after a hearty dinner—there isn't room."

He laughed, but the widow felt that he was watching her keenly. She was sure now that he had suspected her chagrin and that his apology was the outcome of this suspicion. But she would prove to him that he was mistaken.

The Doctor Leaves

"Why, Dr. Haynes!" she exclaimed, "how ridiculous of you to think it worth while to explain your kindness! I am so grateful to you for giving Jean—poor little dear!—the outing. Besides, I couldn't go anyway, no matter how big your car was, for some one must look out for the boxes and trunks and see that the expressman gets them all. And, of course, that 'some one' must be myself."

She smiled wearily, but if she had expected sympathy she was doomed to another disappointment, for the physician glanced at his watch, then turned abruptly to the door.

"Well, I'm glad you understand," he said, hurriedly. "I must be off. Good morning!"

Beatrice returned to the bare rooms and the unattractive cold meal which she had ordered for the servants instead of the usual Sunday dinner. She was not accustomed to such work as had filled her morning, and her head ached in consequence. The cold repast did not tempt her appetite, and, after eating a few mouthfuls, she pushed back her chair from the table, explained to Mary that she was tired and would need to rest this afternoon, and asked her to look after the children. Then she went into her own room, donned a wrapper, stretched herself upon her couch and began to read a new magazine.

She had read only a few pages when she became drowsy, so, laying down the magazine, she closed her eyes, and was on the verge of a delicious slumber when the telephone bell rang loudly. Mary and the children, in the closed bedroom beyond, where their voices could not disturb the tired mother, did not hear the bell, and Beatrice dragged herself out into the hall to answer it. Few persons are calm and sweet-tempered when roused from a much-needed nap and Mrs. Miller was no exception to this rule.

"Well?" she asked sharply.

"Is that you, my dear," came over the wire.

"Yes, Mr. Blanchard," she answered, still tartly, "it is I."

"I wish you would call me 'Henry,' instead of using that formal 'Mr. Blanchard,'" suggested the pleading masculine voice.

Rebuff by Phone

"I hardly think that I care to discuss that matter over the telephone," responded the widow coldly.

"Nor do I," agreed Henry Blanchard eagerly. "And I'm calling up to ask if I may not come up to see you this afternoon."

Beatrice hesitated for a moment. She did not want to offend the elderly man so that he would cease his attentions, but her soul loathed the thought of talking to him through the dreary length of his Sunday afternoon. She felt that she could not stand his society when she was as tired as she was at present. But she modified her voice and manner when she answered.

"I fear not," she said, more kindly. I'm just in the throes of packing preparatory to going to Pleasanton tomorrow, and I'm so tired that I really think you would not enjoy my company, even if I had time to stop to entertain you."

"All right," responded the man. "Then I won't bother you." But there was a note of disappointment or of displeasure in his tone.

"I am really sorry," said the widow, temper subsiding and spirits rising as she appreciated that she was to be spared all from her aged suitor. "But you must be sure to come to see me soon after we're settled in Pleasanton, you know."

"Thank you," said the man. "Good-by!"

Beatrice returned the receiver to its hook and went back to her room and couch.

"I suppose I've made him angry now," she muttered, ruefully. "But I can't help it and I don't mean to worry about it." Three minutes later she was slumbering peacefully.

As is usual with Summer moving days, Monday was hot. After Beatrice had seen her ecstatically happy daughter borne off by the doctor and her trunks and boxes carried away by the expressman, she, Jack and Mary, laden with bags and suitcases, took the car for the train.

A New Face

The journey to Pleasanton was warm, dusty and uneventful. As Beatrice descended from the car at the smart suburban station her eyes lighted with pleasure at seeing Helen, in a stylish depot wagon, awaiting her. The widow had been conscious of that depressed feeling common to so many persons when they arrive, jaded and weary, at the place in which they have decided to spend the Summer.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, as she grasped Helen's hand, "I'm glad to see you. I've been so homesick and blue since my way out!"

Mrs. Robbins laughed merrily. "I came for you myself," she said, "and you must sit here by me on the front seat. Jack and Mary can sit behind."

The train had not yet left the station, and the nervous horse tossed his head and pawed the ground restlessly. Then, as the train, with a sudden blessing of steam, started the animal reared upon its hind legs. Before he could do any harm a man sprang at his head, caught the bridle, with a jerk pulled him down upon his four feet and, still holding him, stroked his neck, talking to him soothingly.

Beatrice looked at the man curiously. He was tall, lean and dark and wore tennis flannels. His face seemed vaguely familiar when he smiled and lifted his hat in recognition of Helen's exclamation of gratitude as, the train having drawn out of the station, he let the nervous horse go.

"Who is that?" asked Beatrice, when connected conversation was once more possible.

"That's Paul Maynard—Robert's brother," Helen answered. "He's rich—a mine operator, I believe. By the way," she added, after a moment's pause, "he's a bachelor, too."

The Ten Ages of Beauty

No. 9—The Victorian Girl

Illustrations from Good Housekeeping Magazine for September.

This Picture by Nell Brinkley Is Reproduced by Permission and Accompanies an Article by Octave Usanne on "The Story of Furs and Muffs."

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER.

PEOPLE talk so much about the high cost of living, about immodest and impossible fashions, that we women frequently forget that we are living now in the very best time that ever was, and are enjoying more freedom than our sex has ever been allowed to indulge in before.

The days of chivalry, with their tournaments of love, their courts of honor and their queens of beauty, had a very seamy side, and women in most ways were little better than slaves.

Before the French Revolution the aristocratic woman of wealth may have queened it over her surroundings, but vast numbers of her poor sisters toiled in unspeakable misery and degradation.

It was only after the beginning of the nineteenth century and well along toward the middle of it that women were permitted to have some sort of an education; and it is only of late—that is, in the last twenty years—that some of the idiotic barriers of fashion which have impeded the progress of the sex have at last been ridiculed into the limbo of bygone horrors.

Look at the beauty in the picture. Your mother dressed this way, for this pretty girl is arrayed in the popular fashion of the late seventies.

She trailed a dress which contained from twenty to forty-two yards of material through the dust, for the unhygienic train was necessary to her status, and no grown-up lady went without one.

You may rail against the short hobble skirt, but it is a million times more healthful than these trains, with their yards of scalloped and piped material, and the great, big bunched-up bustle, which today seems positively grotesque.

Under this frock the girl of the late seventies wore the tightest corsets she could squeeze herself into. A waist of eighteen inches, which is considered too small for the average well-built girl today, would have been laughed at as being far too big for the high-bred gentlewoman of the seventies, who pinched her vital organs into sixteen inches of space, and then considered that was the natural size for her.

On her feet this lady wore shoes at least one size smaller than her foot, for the woman with big feet was desperately mortified, and considered that she must hide them and suffer untold agony in shoes that no sane woman of today would think of wearing.

Comparatively few women wear pads nowadays, and good figures are developed by exercise and athletics. In those days almost every woman wore pads of some sort to simulate the perfect figure which nature had denied her.

The modern girl, even when she had the puff and rat habit, would feel ridiculous if she wore the same amount of false hair which pressed upon the overheated head of the girl of 1879.

To be fashionable in those days one had to risk one's health, and a girl dressed in these garments could not enjoy one-half or even one-third of the healthy pleasures of the girl of today.

Croquet was looked upon as a spirited and almost unconventional game. Today it is almost forgotten. So do styles change. Let us be thankful.

In this picture Miss Brinkley has aptly depicted the ridiculous and uncomfortable style of dress of the Victorian era.

The dress being worn by the beautiful girl in the picture would have consisted of from twenty to forty yards of material.

An enormous quantity of false hair, shoes several sizes too small, and a horrible breath-squeezing corset were some other things worn by the fashionable girl of the early seventies.

Mine and Thine

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WITH every wish for the happiness of young girls and every interest in their welfare, I do most earnestly contend that the present fashion of turning the world over to them is causing them to recognize no distinction between Mine and Thine.

As children at home, it is all Mine. They have not been trained to know that something belongs to Father and Mother.

The front porch, the parlor, the best bedroom are given to daughter, and this filial crowding to the wall doesn't end here; she fills the house with guests, and they assist in pushing the parents out.

The daughter who reads this may not believe it. Let me ask her a question:

When Father comes home tired and nervous at night and finds the house filled with noisy guests, is he pleased?

Let me ask another:

If he is pleased or not, does it make any difference?

Mother to Blame

In this disregard of the wage-earner, the daughter is not altogether to blame. In the majority of instances her mother abets and encourages her. She wants her girl to have a good time—and that is most commendably. But I contend that these good times are held absolutely regardless of the comfort of the one upon whose shoulders rests the burden of support.

This contention is not conducive to popularity, that I know, for women like that woman best who sees only their side of every domestic problem. But it is because I am so interested in the happiness of the girls that I take the courage to point out their mistakes.

This little habit of overlooking every distinction between Mine and Thine grows, and this is what happens:

A girl isn't taught at home to know that Father has any domestic rights. She marries. Her hopes and dreams of what her home will be have filled many a book and are as pretty as a June sunrise. But they are pretty because Love temporarily hides the seldshness.

After Marriage

A bride-to-be plans her future home with every instinct of hospitality directed to her kindred and her friends. The man who weds the home possible has kindred and friends, but they are never considered.

The first family dinner is given for her family; the first guests to spend the day, or week, or month, are her kindred or friends. If there chance to be one of his in the number, it is purely accident. Perhaps his kindred happened in, or perhaps there were eleven of hers, and to avoid the thirteen at table she invited one of his.

The husband may rebel at he may not, having learned from his father that such rebellions are futile.

But whether he protests violently, or mildly grumbles, or says nothing, the feeling of injustice rankles and abides with him. He has discovered that he is not the member of his own household which every man hopes to be—he is merely the wage earner.

The Man's Dream

He had dreams: but the dreams of a man about to be married have never found an interpreter. For this reason, there is no one who seems to care if they don't come true.

Is it those dreams his home-coming at night was the crowning joy of the little wife who had been waiting for him all day.. Not once did he dream of himself as merely the man who sits at the head of the table and carves for his wife's friends.

Unhappiness is the result. His wife knows no distinction between Mine and Thine. She wasn't taught it as a daughter. She will learn it—sometimes so painfully!—after she has become a wife.

That is why I make an appeal to every girl to consider the comfort of her father.

And to the young men I have also a word. There is a little guide-post pointing the way to happiness for every man who goes wife-seeking. It has on it these words:

"The best wife is the girl who is kindest to her father."

In Other People's Houses

YOUTH AND AGE CAN NEVER RECONCILE THEIR VARYING POINTS OF VIEW

By DOROTHY DIX

AN old mother went to live with her son, whose wife's mother also lived in the same house. Both the son and his wife did all they could to make the old lady happy, but she disapproved of the manners and point of view of the daughter-in-law's mother, and felt it to be her sacred duty to express her opinion freely on the subject. Trouble ensued.

Then the mother went to live with her married daughter, but she didn't like her son-in-law's relatives any better than she did her daughter-in-law's, and she likewise felt it nothing more than right, and her privilege, to vent her sentiments thereby, stirring up strife again, and precipitating another family row.

It appears that before mother arrived on the scene both her son and her daughter were on the most affectionate terms with their "in-laws," and got along beautifully with them, and because they refused to sever these kindly ties, and take mother's part in the foolish quarrels, she feels that she has been very badly treated, and calls them unfaithful children, and regards herself as a persecuted martyr.

Of course, there is no use in telling the old lady that her son and daughter are right, and that there's just one person more foolish than the individual who is always getting into quarrels, and that is the one who takes up somebody else's quarrel. Nor is there any good in telling her that, far from having a grievance to her children loving their "in-laws," she should fall down on her knees thanking Heaven for the miracle that has been vouchsafed in their behalf.

The Conceit of Age

Nor is it worth while to remind her that other people have just as good a right to their own code of ethics and conduct as she has, and that she holds no divine commission to go around reforming the world, and forcing other people to measure up to her little narrow inch-rule.

Colossal self-conceit is one of the unlovely characteristics of age that only the biggest and broadest minded people escape. By the time a woman has admired herself for forty-odd years vanity becomes an incurable disease. By the time she has been sure she was exactly right for half a century you could reason a mountain easier than you could shake her faith in her own infallibility, and her mind is as impervious to the suggestion that she might be in the wrong as a granite boulder is to the prick of a cambric needle.

Old people always think they are Solomons, that their way of doing things is the only way, their point of view the only correct one, and this is what makes it so difficult for any old man or woman, and especially an old woman, to live in another person's house.

The old woman quarrels with her daughter-in-law because the daughter-in-law doesn't keep house exactly as she did, and doesn't bring up her children just as she brought up hers, and because daughter-in-law goes out to clubs when she never did, or wears tight skirts when she wore hoop skirts, or she uses the best china every day when she always kept hers under lock and key, and brought it out only on state occasions.

The Nagger

Or the old lady nags and frets at her son-in-law because he smokes when she disapproves of tobacco, or he has beer with his dinner when she is a W. C. T. U., or he has old chums of whom she is suspicious, or because he will read the Sunday newspaper instead of going to church.

It never occurs to the old lady that her daughter-in-law may be a far more intelligent woman than she is, that her way of keeping house and raising children may be a thousand times more scientific, or that the daughter-in-law's way may represent the advance in progress of a generation, and that even if it doesn't, the daughter-in-law has just as good a right to run her own affairs in her own way as she had to run hers in her way.

Nor does it dawn on her that any man who pays for the support of a home has the privilege in doing it to be pleased, and that it is an insolent impertinence for any outsider to interfere with him.

Mother-in-law is always an unwelcome guest, whether it is in her son's or her daughter's house, and it is her own fault in the majority of cases that this is true. And it is true because she cannot keep her finger out of her children's pies. She's bound to meddle, and when she does the mischief's to pay.

Because a woman happens to be the mother of her host or hostess does not make her any the less a guest under the roof, and if she could only remember this, and conduct herself according to the rules laid down by decent society for the guidance of guests, it would enormously augment the sum of human happiness.

Rights of Hosts

Because a woman is staying in her son's house gives her no right to try to boss it and her daughter-in-law, or to criticise the bread she eats. On the contrary, it should make her that much more discreet and chary of making suggestions. Daughter-in-law will ask for her advice when she wants it, and the wise thing is to withhold counsel even when it is requested.

Nor does the fact that she is living with her daughter give a woman the right to police her son-in-law and make herself disagreeable to him. On the contrary, as she pays for her board with her society, it is all the more up to her to make that society agreeable, soothing and flattering.

Old people are not adaptable, and it seems impossible for the woman who has ruled supreme in her own house to take second place in somebody else's. It is likewise impossible for a mother to realize that her children ever grow up, and that when they are married they have a duty to husband or wife that comes even before their duty to her. This is why the advent of the mother-in-law in a family is almost invariably the beginning of trouble, and why no mother should go to live with any one of her married children if it is possible to avoid it.

Undoubtedly daughters-in-law and sons-in-law are not angels to live with. They lack much in patience and consideration in dealing with their wives' and husbands' mothers. But mother's skirts are not clear, either, and the woman who has really her children's interest at heart, who loves them unselfishly, will go to an old ladies' home before she will go to live with them.

Do You Know That—

It is interesting to read of the singular way in which Welsh mourns used to pay their doctors. At the Court of the Gwynedd Kings the physician or surgeon ranked twelfth in order of precedence among the household officials, and his fees were carefully defined. For curing a Welsh wound that was not dangerous the doctor was allowed no other perquisite than such of the garments of the wounded person as were stained with blood. But for curing any of what were called "the three dangerous wounds" he was granted a fee of $3 and his maintenance during the cure, besides the blood-stained garments.

Pigeon racing, unfortunately for a good many devotees, does not lead itself to money making; but there are a few of the large fanciers who, year after year, will average $1,000 in prizes and pools, in addition to considerable sums from the sales of young stock. As a general rule, however, the outlay in a large loft, in food, training, entrance fees, etc., is so heavy that many a fancier finds the balance on the wrong side.

During the last fifteen years over 200,000 married persons in England and Wales have been separated by legal process, and about 50,000 persons have been separated by private agreement.

WORST STOMACH TROUBLE ENDED

No Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Five Minutes After Taking "Pape's Diapepsin."

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapepsin, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of dyspepsia, indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

Household Hints

To clean white and light colored plumes that are only slightly soiled gently rub them in a pan of equal parts of salt and flour.

If kodak pictures have turned yellow or green in spots after the first finishing, redip them at another printing and place them in the fixing bath again. They are often in this way rendered perfect.

In making ices in which you wish to use fresh fruit of any kind, let the fruit remain in good sherry wine for eight or ten hours before putting in the freezer. The fruit will remain soft. Pressing will not harden it.

White enamel kitchenware can be kept in excellent condition if it is occasionally rinsed by piercing the utensil in a larger vessel with cold water to which a tablespoonful of lye has been added. Place on a stove and let the water boil, then wash the enameled ware in ordinary dishwater.

When using milk it is useful to know that sour milk makes a spongy, light cake; sweet milk, one which cuts like pound cake. With sour milk soda alone is used; with sweet milk, soda and cream of tartar. Never use fresh and sour milk for the same cake. Butter should be beaten to a cream, and the sugar added very gradually; next the yolks of eggs, then the flour, then the whites of the eggs, and finally the flavoring or spice.

To clean a meat chopper put a piece of bread through it after you have been chopping raisins, meat or anything that is hard to wash out of a chopper and you will have no difficulty in washing it afterward.

To make an ordinary candle serve as an all-night lamp, pack finely powdered salt around the wick as far up as the blackened part. In this way a mild, steady light may be obtained all night from even a small piece of candle.

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:— "I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. Martha f. Holloway, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

Pearls That Have Escaped the "Four Hundred"

The wives of American millionaires in the "Four Hundred" have captured most of the large collections of matched pearls obtainable in Europe, but some of these collections of matched pearls are beyond reach of even American wealth.

The collection of the Countess Nadejda Torby is the envy of British and Continental society. She is a daughter of the Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch and is only sixteen. Her collection consists largely of the pearl-decorated "kokoclinik," or Russian head-dress, now used only at court functions. In addition to the head-dress, with its pearl-rope pendants, the young Countess also wears a necklace of eleven strands.

The Countess, in full court regalia, wears $1,000,000 worth of pearls.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

The painter was perched on the scaffold, thinking himself safe from prying eyes, but the foreman, unseen down below, had been watching the slow, mechanical strokes for a good while.

"Mind you don't fall, painter!" he shouted up.

"Oh, that's all right, sir; I'm as safe as the bank up here," replied the startled painter.

"Asleep, I meant," said the foreman, as he strolled away, and as the sound of a faster beat of the brush reached him, he knew the hint had been taken.

He (cautiously)—If I should propose, would you say "yes?"

She (still more cautiously)—If you knew I would say "Yes," would you propose?

A little slum child was enjoying his first glimpse of pastoral life. The setting sun was gilding the grass and roses of the old-fashioned garden, and as a little stool he sat beside the farmer's wife, who was plucking a chicken.

He watched the operation gravely for some time. Then he spoke:

"Do you take off their clothes every night, lady?"

Bill—I hear Short, the coal merchant, has just come into a large fortune.

Sam—Well, he's entitled to it.

Bill—Oh, he is, eh?

Sam—Yes; he's been lying in weight for it for a good many years.

PART I.—(Continued)

THE words were plain enough, but the stricken listener did not take them in. They carried no meaning to him. How should they? The very idea she sought to impress upon him by this seemingly careless allusion was an incredible one. She found it her dreadful task to tell him the hard, bare truth.

"Your brother," said she, "was devoted to Miss Challoner, too. He even wanted to marry her. I cannot keep back this fact. It is known everywhere, and by everybody but you."

"Orlando?" His lips took an ironical curve, as he uttered the word. This was a young girl's imaginative fancy to him. "Why Orlando never knew her, never saw her, never——"

"He met her at Lenox."

The name produced its effect. He stared, made an effort to think, repeated Lenox over to himself; then suddenly, losing his hold upon the idea that word suggested, struggled again for it, seized it in an instant of madness and shouted out:

"Yes, yes, I remember. I sent him there——" and paused, his mind blank again.

Poor Doris, frightened to her very soul, looked blindly about for help; but she did not quit his side; she did not dare to, for his lips had reopened; he was going to speak.

"I sent him there." The words came in a sort of shout. "I was so hungry to hear of her and I thought he might mention her in his letter. Insane! Insane! He saw her and—what's that you said about his loving her? He couldn't have loved her; he's not of the loving sort. They're deceived the whole world with fancies and mad dreams. He may have admired her, but loved her—no; or if he had, he would have respected my claims."

"He did not know them."

A laugh; a laugh which paled Doris' cheek; then his tones grew even again, memory came back and he muttered faintly:

"That is true. I said nothing to him. He had the right to court her—and he did, you say; wrote to her; imposed himself upon her; drove her mad with importunities she was forced to rebuke; and—and what else? There is something else. Tell me; I will know it all."

He was standing now, his feebleness all gone, passion in every lineament and his eye alive and feverish with emotion. "Tell me," he repeated, with unrestrained vehemence. "Tell me all. Kill me with sorrow but save me from being unjust."

"He wrote her a letter; it frightened her. He followed it up by a visit——"

Doris paused; the sentence hung suspended; she had heard a step—a hand on the door.

Orlando had entered the room.

Alone

ORLANDO had heard nothing, seen nothing. But he took note of Doris's silence, and turning toward her he freely saw what had happened, and so was in a measure prepared for the stern, short sentence which now rang through the room:

"Wait, Miss Scott! You tell the story badly. Let him listen to me. From my mouth only shall he hear the stern and seemingly unnatural part I played in this family tragedy."

The face of Oswald hardened. Those plant features—beloved for their gracious kindness—set themselves in lines which altered them almost beyond recognition. But his voice was not without some of its natural sweetness, as, after a long and bolted look at the other's composed countenance, he abruptly exclaimed:

"Speak! I am bound to listen; you are my brother."

Orlando turned toward Doris. She was slipping away.

"Don't go," said he.

But she was gone.

Slowly he turned back.

Oswald raised his hand and checked the words with which he would have begun his story.

"Never mind the beginning," said he. "Doris has told all that. You saw Miss Challoner in Lenox—admired her—offered yourself to her and afterward wrote her a threatening letter because she rejected you."

"It is true. Other men have followed just such unworthy impulses—and been ashamed and sorry afterward. I was sorry and I was ashamed, and as soon as my first anger was over went to tell her so. But she mistook my purpose and——"

"And what?"

Orlando hesitated. Even his iron nature trembled before the misery he saw—a misery he was destined to augment rather than soothe. With pains altogether out of keeping with his character, he sought in the recesses of his darkened mind for words less bitter and less abrupt than those which sprang voluntarily to his lips. But he did not find them. Though he pitied his brother and wished to show that he did, nothing but the stern language suitable to the stern fact he wished to impart, would leave his lips.

"And ended the pitiful struggle of the moment with one quick, unpremeditated blow," was what he said. "There is no other explanation possible for this act, Oswald. Bitter as it is for me to acknowledge it, I am thus far guilty of this beloved woman's death. But, as God hears me, from the moment I first saw her, to the moment I saw her last, I did not know, nor did I for a moment dream that she was anything to you or to any other man of my stamp and station. I thought she despised my country birth, my mechanical attempts, my lack of aristocratic pretensions and traditions.

"Edith?"

"Now that I know she had other reasons for her contempt—that the words she wrote were in rebuke to the brother rather than to the man, I feel my guilt and deplore my fault. I cannot say any more. I should but insult your grief by any lengthy expressions of regret and sorrow."

A groan of intolerable anguish from the sick man's lips, and then the quick thrust of his reawakened intelligence rising superior to the overthrow of all his hopes.

"For a woman of Edith's principles to seek death in a moment of desperation, the provocation must have been very great. Tell me if I'm to hate you through life—you through all eternity—or if I must seek in some unimaginable failure of my own character or conduct the cause of her intolerable despair."

"Oswald!" The tone was controlling, and yet that of one strong man to another. "Is it for us to read the heart of any woman, least of all of a woman of her susceptibilities and keen inner life? The wish to end all comes to some natures like a lightning flash from a clear sky. It comes. It goes, often without leaving a sign. But if a weapon chances to be near—there it was at hand—then death follows the impulse which, given an instant of thought, would have vanished in a back sweep of other emotions. Chance was the real accessory to this death by suicide. Oswald let us realize it as such and accept our sorrow as a mutual burden and turn to what remain to us of life and labor. Work is grief's only consolation. Then let us work."

But of all this Oswald had caught but the one word.

"Chance?" he repeated. "Orlando, I believe in God."

"Then seek your comfort there. I find it in harnessing the winds; in forcing the powers of nature to do my bidding."

The other did not speak, and the silence grew heavy. It was broken, when it was broken, by a cry from Oswald:

"No more," said he, "no more." Then, in a yearning accent, "Send Doris to me."

Orlando started. This name coming so close upon that word comfort, produced a strange effect upon him. But another look at Oswald and he was ready to do his bidding. The bitter ordeal was over; let him have his solace if it was in her power to give it to him.

Orlando, upon leaving his brother's room, did not stop to deliver that brother's message directly to Doris; he left this for Truda to do, and retired immediately to his hangar in the woods. Locking himself in, he slightly raised the roof and then sat down before the car which was rapidly taking on shape and assuming that individuality and appearance of sentient life which hitherto he had only seen in dreams. But his eye, which had never failed to kindle at this sight before, shone dully in the semi-gloom. The aircar could wait; he would first have his hour in this solitude of his own making. The gaze he dreaded, the words from which he shrank could not penetrate here. He might even shout her name aloud, and only these windowless walls would respond. He was alone with his past, his present and his future.

Alone!

He needed to be. The strongest must pause when the precipice yawns before him. The gulf can be spanned; he feels himself forceful enough for that; but his eyes must take their measurement of it first; he must know its depths and possible dangers. Only a fool would ignore these steeps of jagged rock; and he was no fool, only a man to whom the unexpected had happened, a man who had seen his way clear to the horizon and then had come up against this! Love, when he thought such folly dead! Remorse, when Glory called for the quiet mind and heart!

To Be Continued Monday.

Different

THE village wise man was holding forth on the subject of old sayings and how often they proved true.

"An looker 'ere," he went on, decisively, "there's that saying, 'united we stand, divided we fall.' Now, ain't that true? It appeals to everything equally. We can see just for ourselves how true it is. Everything obeys that law, whether inanimate or innanimated."

He paused for the applause which should have followed this display of wisdom, but before it had come there sounded a soft voice from a dark corner.

"Humph!" It said, scepticially. "What about a pair o' steps?"

FEEL FINE! LIVER RIGHT, STOMACH SWEET, HEADACHE GONE---"CASCARETS"

Cascarets make you feel bully; they immediately cleanse and sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any druggist will keep your Stomach regulated, Head clear and Liver and Bowels in a splendid condition for months. Don't forget the children.

10 Cents. Never gripe or sicken.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STATE STREET, Sept. 21.—Stock markets were strong today. The Boston market was active at the start and held its good tone, although towards the end of the first hour trading became quieter. Among stocks which advanced in early trading were American Telephone & Telegraph, North Butte, Copper Range, East Butte, Mohawk, United Fruit, Granby, Calumet & Hecla and New England Telephone & Telegraph.

At the opening in New York, Lehigh Valley was one of the most active issues on the list. It gained ¾ at the start and then increased it to a full point. The issue climbed steadily throughout the first fifteen minutes, going from 170¾ to 171¾. The entire list was up. Among stocks to advance were Steel common, Amalgamated, American Smelting, Erie common, Atchison, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific. The price tendency continued upward.

American Can, which has been unusually active this week, and Southern Pacific were unchanged.

The Curb was steady.

Americans in London were active. Canadian Pacific was quiet there.

Financial News in Brief.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have purchased $10,000,000 of the $60,000,000 issue of 5 per cent. debentures recently authorized by the shareholders of the General Electric Company. No date has yet been set for a public offering of the bonds.

It is reported in Washington that anti-trust proceedings involving Standard Oil, the Tobacco and Powder combines, may be taken soon. There are persistent rumors at the Capital of charges that Standard Oil has placed itself in contempt. At the Department of Justice it is said that nothing is known there about the matter.

Formidable competition for former subsidiaries of the old American Tobacco Company is said to be imminent. According to the story capitalists close to the United States Steel Corporation and the First National Bank of New York are going to start a cigarette making concern, and that the Sunburg and some other independent companies will go into the new corporation.

It is estimated that the New York apple crop will be the biggest in years, and conditions in nearly all the states are favorable. Reports received at the New York Exchange yesterday totalled more than forty-one per cent. more than last year.

As orders received by the United States Steel Corporation are exceeding deliveries, an increase in unfilled tonnage is expected when the report for September is given out.

There is talk to the effect that when United Cigar Stores directors meet they may declare an extra dividend of 1 or possibly 2 per cent. in addition to the regular one of 5 per cent. per annum.

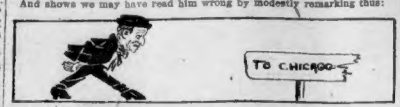
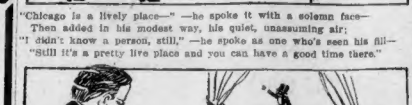
DANIEL IN CHICAGO'S DEN

By MORTON BIRGE.

He slipped so gently out of town, this "Quiet, little man in brown,"
That's how some speak of Fresno Dan because he makes no noise or fuss,
We wonder where he's gone and then he tiptoes gently in again,
And shows we may have read him wrong by modestly remarking thus:



"Chicago is a lively place"—he spoke it with a solemn face—
Then added in his modest way, his quiet, unassuming air;
"I don't know a person, still," —he spoke as one who's seen his fill—
"Still it's a pretty live place and you can have a good time there."



Now look you here, you Fresno Dan, you quiet, unassuming man,
Have we been reading you all wrong and failed to get your number down
We all supposed your limit, Sir, was "mortise" at a nickel per.
Now tell us what you up and did in little old Chicago town.

NEW DEMAND BY 'PHONE GIRLS

The 1,600 "hello girls" in the Boston Telephone Operators' Union have voted that unless some satisfactory settlement is brought about with the New England Telephone Company, the union will take further action.

They insist upon recognition of the union.

It was announced at the union meeting that Secretary John B. McPherson of the New England Civic Federation had this week conferred with the union's arbitration committee, and that he would make a further effort to adjust all the matters at issue and secure another conference with the union's committee.

It was also reported that the arbitration committee had been unable to secure a conference with President Keller of the company, who has been out of town.

It was declared that the company has failed to live up to its agreements or carry out some of the voluntary concessions it publicly announced and posted this year.

CITY CLUB WAITERS GRANTED DEMANDS

The waiters at the City Club, members of the International Hotel Workers' Union, who a few days ago presented demands for changes in the service to the management, have reached an agreement with the club.

The agreement will benefit 150 employes, including bell boys, waiters and cooks. Organizer Dumas pressured grievances of the employes and the club committee concurred in granting an average increase of 10 per cent. in wages, a ten-hour working day and a day off each week. Organizer Edward Stockinger, also representing the Hotel Workers' Union, solicited grievances of the porters and bell boys employed at the Adams House at a conference with Manager G. G. Hall. It was reported at the union headquarters that Manager Morse of the Brewster Hotel had given notice of an increase in wages and two days off each month. No demands have been made at this hotel.

The Boston Athletic Association will today give its decision on demands presented by the union in behalf of cooks and waiters employed at its club rooms.

MELLEN AFTER BIG HOTELS

The Boston News Bureau says today that the New Haven owned Boston & Maine has been offered the Mt. Washington and Mt. Pleasant Hotel properties in the White Mountains for $7,000,000. The News Bureau says:

It is said that the asking price for the Bretton Woods property in New Hampshire, which includes the famous Mt. Washington Hotel and the Mt. Pleasant Hotel and 22,000 acres of land, is $7,000,000.

The Mt. Washington Hotel was built about ten years ago by Mr. Stickney of Stickney, Conyngham & Co., the coal merchants, and was largely a work of love. Mr. Stickney was fascinated with the locality, and while he lived it never expected to be a profitable investment.

H. H. Rogers and some Standard Oil people took a slight interest, more because they enjoyed the place than from any thought it was a good investment. Lately, however, the season at the White Mountains has begun to lengthen and the hotel is returning a small dividend. It is believed that it can this year pay six per cent. upon its $2,000,000 cost. It is understood, however, that for the entire property $7,000,000 is now the asking price.

The proprietors are much encouraged over the outlook and propose spending $150,000 in improvements at the Mt. Pleasant.

The New Haven management of the Boston & Maine seems to be following the policy of the Canadian Pacific in acquiring a line of first-class hotels, but $7,000,000 is a large price to pay for two hotels.

It is said, however, that if the Boston & Maine should purchase the Mt. Washington property it would delay for some time the building of the new Tip Top House on Mt. Washington, but not the construction of the proposed electric railway electrifying the present steam railroad from the present cog-wheel railroad. At present there are fifteen surveyors at work on the mountain locating the proposed line.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

In Detroit an effort is being made to persuade the railroad companies to furnish 50,000 more freight cars for automobile service. There are upwards of 40,000 cars now in this service. Freight car service upon the various railroad lines of the United States, and with the prospects of 100,000 carloads of automobiles to be handled this year, the supply of freight cars, both now and next year, appear to be sufficient, if each car suitable for automobile shipment could be made to make two and a half trips each during the season. According to the railroads the additional equipment will be about 5,000, which should greatly decrease the possibility of another tie-up.

Fred Walsh, New England distributor for the Cadillac, recently returned from Detroit, where he went to attend the convention of the dealers and branch managers of this line. He was greatly impressed with the enthusiasm shown by the delegates, and says that the 1913 prospects for the Oakland line are better than ever. As far as he is concerned here in New England he is confident that he is going to have the biggest season in the history of the company.

G. H. Giltner, the new sales manager of the Velie Motor Vehicle Company, is visiting Boston and New England in the Boston branch. Before joining the sales forces of the Velie Mr. Giltner was for some time one of the five wires of the Rambler organization.

* * *

Mayor Fitzgerald has received a letter from the Velie Company stating that the Boston branch would co-operate in welcoming the Red Sox team home, and that they would provide Velie cars for the players in the parade.

The sales managers' convention decided upon a trip a week ago by the executive committee of the Automobile Board of Trade will be held at its headquarters in New York on Monday and Tuesday, September 30th and October 1st.

* * *

It will not be the fault of the J. S. Harrington Company if the new Flanders 85 does not arrive here soon, for yesterday J. S. Harrington, Dan Harrington, Wallace Hood, sales manager of the company, and H. A. Stevens, engaged in handling the Flanders Electric for the Harrington Co., for Detroit to endeavor to get the 1913 line shipped to Boston as soon as possible.

It would certainly hard to find in the automobile trade four men who have more enthusiasm than this bunch have over the Flanders output for 1913. They are simply aching for a shipment of both Flanders Electric and Flanders Gasolines. They have built up a big selling organization in New England, and anticipate doing a great business.

A. L. Gifford, who has been connected with the local sales force of the Studebaker Corporation for the past three years, recently joined the forces of the J. S. Harrington Company.

Governor Foss' Record of Accomplishment Makes His Renomination Essential for the Good of the State

Almost a month has now passed since some fire-eaters began their warfare against Governor Foss. During that time they have produced plenty of heat but not a single, solitary, substantial reason for their opposition to his renomination.

It must be apparent to the public that this opposition can give no reason which thoughtful citizens would accept. Everybody sees now that this attack upon the Governor is nothing more than a series of wolfish snarls because some men or their friends have NOT RECEIVED ALL THE JOBS THEY WANTED.

When the people of Massachusetts, and especially the great mass of Democrats, consider the achievements of the Governor's two administrations, they realize how petty and unfortunate this opposition is.

The AMERICAN repeats again some of the things which have been done during Governor Foss' term of office, because they are good enough to bear repeating a hundred times; because they are the real issues by which the Governor should be judged; because, if as much had been accomplished by any four other administrations in the last thirty years, Massachusetts would be as near to Utopia as human frailties will permit human government to attain.

Here is GOVERNOR FOSS' WONDERFUL RECORD OF IMPORTANT LEGISLATION SECURED IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Popular election of United States Senators.
Presidential Preference law.
Direct nomination of State officers.
Limitation of campaign expenses.
Workingmen's Compensation law for injured employes.
Anti-Injunction bill, giving workingmen on strike the right of trial by jury.
Fifty-four hours a week for women and children.
Plan for "part time" schooling for working children.'
$5,000,000 for State highways.
Eight-hour day for public employes.
An annual charge of $125,000 forever on the public saved by consolidation of West End and Boston Elevated Railways.
Pensions for State employes and city laborers in Boston.
Minimum Wage Commission.
Plan to improve the prison industries.
Investigation of sale of prison-made goods in open market.
Plan to assist workmen to secure suburban homesteads.
State Labor Board established.
Investigation of stock-selling holding companies.
Grand Trunk Railroad bill.
Supervision of loan business to protect small borrowers.
Compensation for suspected persons confined before trial.
Efficient and humane administration of public institutions.
Abolishment of solitary confinement and reformatories.
Appropriation of nine million dollars for Boston Harbor.
Plans for the development of waterways, Connecticut and Merrimac Rivers.
Increase in the number of judges and in their salaries.
State Finance Commission (Efficiency and Economy Board).
Increased State aid to agriculture.
Increased number of free scholarships in leading technical schools.

But important as have been the things completed during the Foss administration, there have been yet more important things begun but awaiting completion next year. These uncompleted reforms the Governor promises to carry out to the end during his next term.

They involve the regulation of the railroads and the making of prison life less harsh. Governor Foss told at Worcester, on Wednesday, what he hoped to do next year. The things which he HAS DONE are conclusive evidence that he WILL do what he hopes to do.

The AMERICAN quotes part of this speech and asks Democrats to compare it with the petty small-talk of the Governor's opponents about who changed his mind first, how many jobs a certain city received and how many it was entitled to receive and other similar arguments.

Governor Foss said:

The principal issues now before the people of the Commonwealth may be boiled down and stated in the single proposition that the control and the development of transportation service should be returned to the hands of the public authorities.

Industrial and commercial enterprise cannot develop, and no community can grow, without adequate transportation facilities.

Railways and waterways, therefore, not only create public wealth, but they bring that wealth within reach of all parts of the Commonwealth and distribute its benefits.

In its effect upon the cost of production and the cost of distribution (the two chief elements in the cost of living) the development of transportation increases the purchasing power of wages, and in that way, too, makes wages worth more to the man who gets them.

The development of transportation facilities, therefore, is a question which comes nearer home to every citizen than any other, and at the same time involves almost every other.

Yet in this Commonwealth the control of transportation has been wrested from the people by private interests not concerned primarily in the public welfare.

If the Commonwealth does not control the railroads, the railroads will control the Commonwealth. The New Haven railroad's fixed policy is to maintain its political power and to prevent legislation hostile to its private interests.

The present management of the New Haven has multiplied many times the capital charge upon which the people must pay dividends in rates and fares without giving the people a corresponding increase in facilities.

The chief aim has been to get an absolute monopoly of the transportation facilities of Massachusetts and to thwart the public authorities; and in this the New Haven has been completely successful.

The people have been unable to secure any improvement in transportation service except upon such terms as the New Haven has dictated.

An example of the arrogance of this great corporation was its proposal to seize for all time every vestige of street railway possible to be constructed in western Massachusetts, at any time in the future, under the pretext of accepting legislation empowering it to construct certain street railway lines.

Absolutely the only thing new in the Western Trolleys bill was the grant of a blanket monopoly to the New Haven road.

My veto of that measure did not take away from the people of Western Massachusetts either anything of, reality or anything of hope, but it did preserve to the people of the whole Commonwealth (and among them to the people of Western Massachusetts) the principle that the Commonwealth is greater than the New Haven road.

My record of two years as Governor has been chiefly characterized by a determination to give back to the people the control of their public utilities.

Sheriff Quinn Is Attempting to Carry Out the Governor's Plans for Jail Reform

He Has Made a Good Start and He Should Be Nominated and Elected and Thereby Given a Chance to Succeed in This Worthy Endeavor.

In this epidemic of opposition to meritorious public servants, Sheriff Quinn finds himself also opposed for election to the office of Sheriff, to which Governor Foss appointed him.

In the course of the campaign which is being made against Sheriff Quinn there appears no legitimate argument which should weigh against Mr. Quinn's fitness for the office.

There is, however, one consideration which ought to have weight with the citizens of Suffolk County in choosing their sheriff. Governor Foss is attempting to reform our prisons. He contends that conditions are unnecessarily harsh and that the prisoners who are confined there lose their self-respect and respect for society and for its laws, by reason of unnecessary conditions, in which they are obliged to live while confined.

Men who have given their lives to studying these conditions condemn the methods employed in some of our jails and prisons and Governor Foss is trying to introduce the reforms which they have suggested.

The Governor put Sheriff Quinn into office in order that he might carry out his ideas in the conduct of the Suffolk County jails. This, Sheriff Quinn is attempting to do.

That he has been successful in the time given him to act, is proved by the feeling which the prisoners have toward him. It would be surprising if any man in the County Jail could be found who does not believe that Sheriff Quinn is his friend.

Sheriff Quinn ought to have a trial to work out these important experiments.

"VOTES FER WIMMIN"

By DAMON RUNYON

I HEAR Plunk Peters talkin' down in Kerry's drum one night
About this votes fer wimmin, wich Plunk Peters sez ain't right.
I hadn't thought so, neither, but if Plunk is in the fight,
I'll take a chanst on Mother an' the gals!

Now Plunk has got an inch o' space betwixt his eyes an' hair;
He could hide behind a gimlet an' have lots o' room to spare.
So when Plunk sez votes fer wimmin is the bunk, I must declare
I'll take a chanst on Mother an' the gals!

Sez Plunk: "When wimmin git to vote, where will us fellers be?
They'll vote us out o' office jest as sure as shootin', see?
An' they'll be no more good gravy from them public jobs for me."
So I'll take a chanst on Mother an' the gals!

For I've knowed Plunk for twenty years, an' I am here to state
They ain't a hair in Peters' head that's even nearly straight;
An' I never had no show to date when Peters fixed the slate—
So I'll take a chanst on Mother an' the gals!

They're Coming Home

By CHESTER FIRKINS

THESE are the days of terror;
These are the days of joy,
Alarms and hopes commingled
In marvellous alloy;
When from the shore or mountain,
Or wheresoe'er they roam,
Our wives send letters saying
That they are coming home.

The lawn is long and seedy;
The rubber plant has died,
Though when we said we'd water it
We didn't think we lied.
The cat (her pet, most treasured)
Has simply quit the flat.
Why did we ever promise
That we would feed the cat?

But, oh! she's coming, coming,
And so's the tow-head boy,
To make this den a home again
With food and love and joy.
No matter how they slave us,
No matter where they roam,
It's good to get the letters
That say they're coming home.

A SUGGESTION TO OUR SANITARY DIVISION

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—When we learn what other municipalities are doing in the matter of sanitation and health protection, our pride in Boston, as a most up-to-date city, is shaken a bit. Only recently we read in the papers an account, from an American who visited some European cities, of the latest scientific precautions used by them to protect public health.

Take, for instance, the matter of garbage collection. There disinfectants are provided which kill all bad odors, and the refuse is taken away in properly covered receptacles. Here, we permit householders to keep their garbage in open cans for several days without disinfectants to kill the offensive smells and to ward off the death-dealing house fly, which fattens on kitchen refuse. We also fail to provide means of collecting our garbage without it becoming a nuisance, endangering public health.

Another instance of our neglect to employ preventive means against disease is our failure to ask for a physical examination for all employes that come in close contact with the public, such as barbers, waiters and cooks. Employers for the protection of their own trade ought to require of each such employe a clean bill of health. What is there to assure us that such employes are not infected with some secret contagious disease?

Is it unreasonable to ask of our Board of Health and sanitary department, which are organized and maintained to guard the public health, to do a little more than their ordinary routine work—to keep a close lookout for anything which may prove a hazard to public health?

The True and Inside Story of Just HOW the Elevated Strike Was Settled Told for the First Time

Various Reports Have Been Circulated Concerning WHO Actually Brought About the End of That Trying Situation and WHAT Influences Were Brought to Bear in the Matter. The REAL Story is to be Told to Readers of Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

FROM the time every boy gets his first watch he is possessed with an insatiable desire to see the wheels go round.

Every man—and woman for that matter—likes to know the WHY of everything.

They want to be "on the inside"—to know what secret wheels of influence in operation have caused the bringing about of great events, to enjoy the confidences of the great and powerful.

To be "on the inside" in any matter is to gain merit and fame in one's circle of friends.

The Sunday AMERICAN, tomorrow, is going to give its readers a peep at the inside of a matter which disturbed the labor and financial worlds in New England.

It will tell THE TRUE AND INSIDE STORY OF HOW THE RECENT ELEVATED STRIKE WAS SETTLED.

It is safe to say that this story will be more widely read than any other story printed in New England tomorrow.

Various reports have been circulated as to WHO settled the strike and WHAT influences were brought to bear in the matter. The AMERICAN'S story, written by one of the men vitally concerned in the work of settlement, tells just how the problem was solved and who solved it.

The eyes of the labor world will be turned towards the quaint and historic "Witch City," Salem, during the next few weeks, when Joseph J. Ettor and three co-defendants are placed on trial as a result of the fatal rioting in Lawrence during the recent mill strike.

On Monday the first steps in the trial will be taken. As great issues will be threshed out then as were at stake in the late trial of the McNamaras in Los Angeles.

Powerful interests on both sides will see that every effort is made to prove their points.

The Sunday AMERICAN will print an adequate story, illustrated, of the plans for the trial and statements by the principals.

Every now and then a story drifts up from Onset concerning some meeting of religious leaders. First it is a gathering of Mormons, then the Holy Jumpers, then some other organization. The other day there was great excitement and a court trial concerning a disturbance in which four residents of the town were embroiled, and it was brought out in court that the trouble originated in a church, when two young women were overcome with religious fervor.

The Sunday AMERICAN has investigated the matter and will print a story telling just what occurs at Onset's religious meetings and what the communicants believe.

Suppose you were a native of a foreign country, couldn't speak English and landed in New York, friendless and with only a gold piece which no one would accept as money, WHAT would you do?

WHAT would you expect your future to be?

There is a resident of Boston who landed in New York under these circumstances and who thought the future was pretty dark for him.

Today he is a millionaire, employs a large number of men, owns large real estate holdings, is a theatre manager and is welcome in Back Bay society circles.

You'll be interested to know to WHAT he believes his success is due, and HOW HE SUCCEEDED.

If HE could make such a success, why couldn't YOU?

Sunday's AMERICAN will print an interview, illustrated, which may encourage you to TAKE A CHANCE if you WANT one.

* * *

You've noticed all the work of reseiling that has been going on up on the Common, the new bandstand, etc., and probably have read about the Parkman fund.

Perhaps you'll be interested to know that the Parkman fund is not Boston's only big benefaction.

Sunday's AMERICAN will print a story telling about some of the other Bostonians who have left great fortunes for the benefit of their fellow townsmen.

* * *

The remarkably well executed pen and ink drawing by Charles Arthur Lawrence of the Old State House, and former Mayor Green's article describing it and refuting the recent charges of Joseph Pennell, the Philadelphia artist, that Boston has nothing to sketch, was widely commented upon last week.

Tomorrow the Sunday AMERICAN will print the second in the series of sketches—this time it is Faneuil Hall, "The Cradle of Liberty," dear to every true Bostonian's heart, and the famous markets.

* * *

The days of country fairs are here—which means that one of these days most everybody in Boston will hie to Brockton to see the greatest of them all.

The Sunday AMERICAN is particularly interested in the Brockton Fair this year, because it is going to have an exhibit all its own—or rather all its readers.

The AMERICAN is going to conduct an APPLE SHOW at Brockton Fair and EVERYBODY is invited to enter. There are prizes which will make it sufficiently interesting for anyone.

* * *

Perhaps one of the most interesting pages to many Sunday AMERICAN readers will be the page telling about the great $40,000 contest, just beginning.

Hundreds of AMERICAN readers have already enrolled in this greatest of all offers ever made by any newspaper, and undoubtedly hundreds of others will enroll before it is too late.

The first prize of $10,000 is so very great that few can afford to overlook it.

As the Contest Editor says—YOU should enroll NOW as a contestant for this great sum—equal to the savings of a lifetime.
